

REPORT

ON

NATIVE PAPERS IN BENGAL

FOR THE

Week ending the 18th September 1909.

CONTENTS.

|                                                                                           | PAGE.      |                                                                          | PAGE.      |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| I.—FOREIGN POLITICS.                                                               |            | (f)—Questions affecting the land—                                 |            |
| The Pioneer on the need of the Persian army ...                                    | 1301       | The settlement operations in Midnapore ...                               | 1309       |
| Capture of Rahim Khan by the Russians ...                                                 | ib. | The status of bhagchasis in Midnapore ...                         | ib. |
| Free arms in Afghanistan ...                                                              | ib. |                                                                          |            |
| The Transvaal Indians ...                                                                 | ib. |                                                                          |            |
| II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.                                                           |            | (g)—Railways and Communications, including Canals and Irrigation— |            |
| (a)—Police—                                                                        |            | A Railway accident ...                                                   | 1310       |
| The new Police Administration Report ...                                                  | 1301       | Floods in the Hooghly district ...                                       | ib. |
| The Police Administration Report for 1908-1909 ...                                        | 1302       | Heavy floods in the Damodar river ...                                    | ib. |
| The Police Administration Report for 1908 ...                                             | 1303       | Heavy floods in the Damodar ...                                          | ib. |
| The Government and the Police ...                                                         | ib. | Heavy floods in the Ghatal Subdivision ...                               | ib. |
| The Police Administration Report ...                                                      | ib. | Ibid ...                                                          | ib. |
| The Annual Report on Police Administration in Eastern Bengal ...                          | ib. | The Damodar floods ...                                                   | ib. |
| The Lieutenant-Governor of Eastern Bengal and Assam on the shortcomings of the Police ... | ib. | Floods in Bengal ...                                                     | 1311       |
| Alleged defilement of Hindu temples at Jagatdal ...                                       | 1304       | Ibid ...                                                          | ib. |
| Allegations against a Tea Planter ...                                                     | ib. | Repairs necessary to the bund on the Ajay river ...                      | ib. |
| (b)—Working of the Courts—                                                         |            | (h)—General—                                                      |            |
| Vagaries of a Magistrate ...                                                              | 1304       | Muhammadan interest in the administrative reforms ...                    | 1311       |
| The Sylhet outrage case ...                                                               | ib. | The Reforms ...                                                          | 1312       |
| A rape case in Sylhet ...                                                                 | ib. | Ibid ...                                                          | ib. |
| Dilkush outrage case ...                                                                  | 1305       | The Dravids of Madras on separate election ...                           | ib. |
| The Press Declaration Form ...                                                            | ib. | The deportations ...                                                     | ib. |
| The injustice to the prisoners in the Alipore Bomb Conspiracy case ...                    | ib. | "The duties of the ruler and the ruled" ...                              | 1313       |
| (c)—Jails—                                                                         |            | The Midnapore affairs ...                                                | ib. |
| "The Jail experiences of Santosh" ...                                                     | 1305       | The Sheriff of Bombay and the local Governor ...                         | 1314       |
| (d)—Education—                                                                     |            | His Excellency Sir O'Moore Creagh ...                                    | ib. |
| Mr. Preston, the Inspector of Schools, Patna ...                                          | 1308       | Mr. Gourlay's report on the Bettiah disturbances ...                     | ib. |
| The Puja vacation for the Presidency College students ...                          | ib. | The indigo riots ...                                                     | ib. |
| Juvenile smoking ...                                                                      | ib. | The grievances of the Telegraphists ...                                  | ib. |
| Primary education in Bengal ...                                                           | ib. | Government fighting against malaria ...                                  | ib. |
| (e)—Local Self-Government and Municipal Administration—                            |            | III.—LEGISLATION.                                                 |            |
| Adulteration of mustard oil in Calcutta ...                                               | 1308       | The law of confessions ...                                               | 1314       |
| Adulteration of mustard oil in Calcutta ...                                               | 1309       |                                                                          |            |
| Beri-Beri in Calcutta ...                                                                 | ib. | IV.—NATIVE STATES.                                                |            |
| Extortions of the ferry farmers ...                                                       | ib. | Free Primary education in Patiala State ...                              | 1315       |
| A Lighting Inspector for the Howrah Municipality on high pay ...                          | ib. | The Scindhia's loyalty ...                                               | ib. |
|                                                                                           |            | A request to the Gaskwar ...                                             | ib. |
|                                                                                           |            | V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.            |            |
|                                                                                           |            | Nil.                                                                     |            |
|                                                                                           |            | VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.                                                |            |
|                                                                                           |            | "What do you want?" ...                                                  | 1315       |
|                                                                                           |            | The Hooghly Conference ...                                               | 1317       |
|                                                                                           |            | The Hooghly Provincial Conference ...                                    | ib. |

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS—concluded.

|                                                                                          |      |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Criticism of the Presidential address delivered in the Hooghly Provincial Conference ... | 1318 |
| Bengal Provincial Conference ...                                                         | ib.  |
| The Bengal Provincial Conference ...                                                     | 1319 |
| Mr. Arabinda Ghosh condemned ...                                                         | ib.  |
| Union of Moderates and Extremists ...                                                    | ib.  |
| Timid conduct of the Lahore Conference ...                                               | 1320 |
| A Congress in London ...                                                                 | ib.  |
| European blow with the fist versus the Swadeshi slap ...                   | ib.  |
| Extended sale of bilati piece-goods among Bengalis ...                            | 1321 |
| Swadeshi song ...                                                                 | ib.  |
| The real need of India ...                                                               | ib.  |
| Crying for swaraj a folly ...                                                     | 1322 |
| Hindus and Musalmans ...                                                                 | ib.  |
| A lathial regiment for Bengal ...                                                 | ib.  |
| Hindi in National institutions ...                                                       | ib.  |
| Absolute rule approved ...                                                               | 1323 |
| Renunciation ...                                                                         | ib.  |
| The Kali era ...                                                                         | ib.  |
| The Janmashtami holiday ...                                                       | 1325 |
| A Poem ...                                                                               | ib.  |
| Slaughter of kine on the Janmashtami ...                                          | ib.  |
| The alleged attempted assault on Messrs. A. and J. Chaudhuri ...                         | ib.  |
| Unruly Highlanders at the Chinsura Railway Station ...                                   | 1326 |
| Mr. O'Donnell and the deportations ...                                                   | ib.  |
| Matwalis and wakf property ...                                                           | ib.  |
| General Botha declines a title ...                                                       | ib.  |
| The Alipore Bomb Appeal case in the High Court ...                                       | ib.  |
| The European and Anglo-Indian Defence Association and house-rents in Calcutta ...        | ib.  |
| Buddha relics ...                                                                        | 1327 |
| Mr. Lynch in Parliament ...                                                              | ib.  |

URIYA PAPERS.

|                                                                                                                                       |      |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| The state of the Balangir High English School in Patna not satisfactory ...                                                           | 1327 |
| An illegality of the Balasore Municipality exposed ...                                                                                | ib.  |
| The policy of paying respect to public opinion highly spoken of ...                                                                   | ib.  |
| The condition of roads in the Balasore Municipality ...                                                                               | ib.  |
| Simultaneous Civil Service Examination in India and England approved ...                                                              | 1328 |
| The question of disposing of the holy remains of Buddha found near Peshawar ...                                                       | ib.  |
| The Talcher Brahmins on the path of social, educational and religious reform ...                                                      | ib.  |
| A proposal for a motor-car service between Sambal-pore and Cuttack ...                                                                | ib.  |
| A proposal to reduce a rate of fine in connection with the Jajpur High English School ...                                             | ib.  |
| Division of the Indian Army on a racial basis approved ...                                                                            | ib.  |
| Circulation of counterfeit coins in the bazars a source of trouble to innocent persons ...                                            | 1329 |
| Bengali and Uriya passengers at loggerheads in railway carriages ...                                                                  | ib.  |
| A liberal financial policy recommended for adoption by Government in connection with its dealing with the Ravenshaw Girls' School ... | ib.  |
| Members of the Cuttack Suddar Local Board swayed by party feeling in the election of their Chairman and Vice-Chairman ...             | ib.  |
| Unjust detention of Uriya pilgrims near Godavari ...                                                                                  | ib.  |
| A boat overturned in the Baradia river ...                                                                                            | ib.  |
| A meeting to found a public library in Puri ...                                                                                       | 1330 |
| Sanitation of the Talcher town improved ...                                                                                           | ib.  |
| Food-stuffs in Talcher ...                                                                                                            | ib.  |
| Small-pox in Kendrapara ...                                                                                                           | ib.  |
| An anniversary meeting of the Central Utkal Young Men's Association ...                                                               | ib.  |
| The celebration of the Jhulan festival in Cuttack ...                                                                          | ib.  |

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS.

[As it stood on the 1st January 1909.]

| No.             | Name of Publication.                         | Where published. | Edition.                 | Name, caste and age of Editor.                                                                                                             | Circulation. |
|-----------------|----------------------------------------------|------------------|--------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------|
| BENGALI. |                                              |                  |                          |                                                                                                                                            |              |
| 1               | "Anusilan" ...                               | Calcutta ..      | Weekly                   | .....                                                                                                                                      | 1,000        |
| 2               | "Bangabandhu" ...                            | Ditto ...        | Do.                      | Barendro Lall Mukerjee, age 27, Hindu                                                                                                      | 500          |
| 3               | "Bangabhumi" ...                             | Ditto ...        | Do.                      | Gets contributions from different writers.                                                                                                 |              |
| 4               | "Bangaratna" ...                             | Ranaghat ...     | Do.                      | Kanai Lal Das, age 25, Karmokar                                                                                                            | 100          |
| 5               | "Bangavasi" ...                              | Calcutta ...     | Do.                      | Behari Lal Sarkar, age 52, Kayastha ;Hari Mohan Mukerji, age 41,Brahmin ; and Durga Das Lahiri.                                    | 15,000       |
| 6               | "Bankura Darpan" ...                         | Bankura ...      | Do.                      | Biswanath Mukerji, B.L. ...                                                                                                                | 713          |
| 7               | "Basumati" ...                               | Calcutta ...     | Do.                      | Radhika Prosad Ghose, age 37, Hindu                                                                                                        | 13,000       |
| 8               | "Bharat Chitra" ...                          | Ditto ...        | Do.                      | .....                                                                                                                                      |              |
| 9               | "Birbhum Hitaishi" ...                       | Suri ...         | Do.                      | Rajranjan Sen, age 34, Baidya                                                                                                              | 300          |
| 10              | "Birbhum Varta" ...                          | Do. ...          | Do.                      | Debendra Nath Chakravarti, age 36,Brahmin.                                                                                             | 800          |
| 11              | "Burdwan Sanjivani" ...                      | Burdwan ...      | Do.                      | Prabodhananda Sarkar                                                                                                                       | 950          |
| 12              | "Chinsura Vartavaha" ...                     | Chinsura ...     | Do.                      | Dinanath Mukerji, age 42, Brahmin                                                                                                          | 650          |
| 13              | "Daily Hitavadi" ...                         | Calcutta ...     | Daily                    | .....                                                                                                                                      |              |
| 14              | "Dainik Chandrika" ...                       | Ditto ...        | Do.                      | Hari Dass Dutt, age 37, Kayastha                                                                                                           | 200          |
| 15              | "Dharma-o-Karma" ...                         | Ditto ...        | Monthly                  | .....                                                                                                                                      |              |
| 16              | "Education Gazette" ...                      | Chinsura ...     | Weekly                   | Shibnath Bannerji, M.A., B.L. ...                                                                                                          | 1,500        |
| 17              | "Ekata" ...                                  | Calcutta ...     | Do.                      | Hari Dhan Kundu (Principal contri-butor), caste Teli , age 34 years,Fashitola, Howrah.                                      | 1,300        |
| 18              | "Hitavadi" ...                               | Ditto ...        | Do.                      | Panch Kowri Banerji, Jaladhar Sen,age 46, Hindu ; and Jogendra KumarChatterjee of Chandragore, andManindranath Bose of Chitta. | 30,000       |
| 19              | "Hindusthan" ...                             | Ditto ...        | Do.                      | Hari Das Dutt, age 37, Kayastha                                                                                                            | 1,000        |
| 20              | "Howrah Hitaishi" ...                        | Howrah ...       | Do.                      | Gishpaty Kabyatirtha, age 36, Kayas-tha.                                                                                               | 3,500        |
| 21              | "Jagaran" ...                                | Bagerhat ...     | Do.                      | Behari Lal Roy, age 45, Kayastha ;Beni Madhab Ganguly, age 35, Brah-min ; and Monmotha Nath Roy, age32, Brahmin.               | 600          |
| 22              | "Jasohar" ...                                | Jessore ...      | Do.                      | Ananda Mohan Chaudhury, age 34,Kayastha                                                                                                | 500          |
| 23              | "Kalyani" ...                                | Magura ...       | Do.                      | Biseswar Mukherjee, age 45, Brahmin ;and Tarak Brahma Sikdar, Kayastha.                                                                | 1,200        |
| 24              | "Khulnavasi" ...                             | Khulna ...       | Do.                      | Gopal Chandra Mukerjee, age 50,Brahmin.                                                                                                | 300          |
| 25              | "Manbhum" ...                                | Purulia ...      | Do.                      | Bagola Chandra Ghosh, age 36,Kayastha.                                                                                                 | 300          |
| 26              | "Matribhumi" ...                             | Chandernagore    | Do.                      | Surendra Nath Sen, age 32, Hindu                                                                                                           | 500          |
| 27              | "Mihir-o-Sudhakar" ...                       | Calcutta ...     | Do.                      | Sayyid Osman of Basirhat, age 35 ;and Maulvi Reyazuddin Ahmad ofKareya.                                                            | 4,000        |
| 28              | "Murshidabad Hitaishi" ...                   | Saidabad ...     | Do.                      | Bonwari Lal Goswami, age 44, Brah-min.                                                                                                 | 100          |
| 29              | "Nadia" ...                                  | Krishnagar ...   | Do.                      | Susil Kumar Maitra, age 28, Brah-min.                                                                                                  | 800          |
| 30              | "Navajivani-o-S w a d e s h iChristian." | Calcutta ...     | Tri-Weekly               | Rev. Lall Behari Shah, age 50, Native-Christian.                                                                                       | 300          |
| 31              | "Nayak" ...                                  | Ditto ...        | Daily and Bi-Weekly. | .....                                                                                                                                      | 500          |
| 32              | "Nihar" ...                                  | Contai ...       | Weekly                   | Madhu Sudhan Jana, age 49 ...                                                                                                              | 200          |
| 33              | "Nivedan" ...                                | Calcutta ...     | Do.                      | .....                                                                                                                                      |              |
| 34              | "Pallivarta" ...                             | Bongong ...      | Do.                      | Charu Ch. Roy, age 35, Kayastha                                                                                                            | 400          |
| 35              | "Pallivasi" ...                              | Kalna ...        | Do.                      | Sosi Bhusan Banerji, age 42, Brahmin                                                                                                       | 600          |
| 36              | "Prachar" ...                                | Calcutta ...     | Monthly                  | .....                                                                                                                                      |              |
| 37              | "Prasun" ...                                 | Katwa ...        | Weekly                   | Purna Chandra Chatterji, age 43 ;and Banku Behari Ghose, age 38,Goals.                                                             | 500          |
| 38              | "Pratihar" ...                               | Berhampore ...   | Do.                      | Kamakhya Prosad Ganguli, age 90,Brahmin.                                                                                               | 100          |
| 39              | "Prava" ...                                  | Calcutta ...     | Do.                      | Mahendra Nath Chakravarti, age 39,Brahmin.                                                                                             | 300          |
| 40              | "Prabhat" ...                                | Ditto ...        | Do.                      | Sailendra Nath Chatterjee, age 26,Brahmin.                                                                                             | 300          |
| 41              | "Purulia Darpan" ...                         | Purulia ...      | Do.                      | Amulya Ratan Chatterjee, age 37,Brahmin.                                                                                               | 300          |
| 42              | "Ratnakar" ...                               | Asansol ...      | Do.                      | Rakhal Chandra Chakravarti, age 26,Brahmin ; and Gopal Chandra Mittra,age 26, Kayastha.                                            | 500          |
| 43              | "Samaj Darpan" ...                           | Salkia ...       | Do.                      | Satya Charan Banerjee, age 28, Brah-min.                                                                                               | 1,300        |
| 44              | "Samay" ...                                  | Calcutta ...     | Do.                      | Ganendra Nath Das, age 54, Brahmin                                                                                                         | 800          |
| 45              | "Sanmilani" ...                              | Serampore ...    | Do.                      | .....                                                                                                                                      |              |

LIST OF NEWSPAPERS—concluded.

| No.                     | Name of Publication.                           | Where published. | Edition.    | Name, caste and age of Editor.                                               | Circulation. |
|-------------------------|------------------------------------------------|------------------|-------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------|
| BENGALI—concl'd. |                                                |                  |             |                                                                              |              |
| 46                      | "Samvad Purnachandrodaya"                      | Calcutta ...     | Daily       | Purna Chandra Ghattak, age 45, Brahmin.                                      | 50           |
| 47                      | "Sanjivani" ...                                | Ditto ...        | Weekly      | Shiva Nath Sastri and Ramananda Chatterjee.                                  | 7,000        |
| 48                      | "Sevika" ...                                   | Diamond Harbour  | Monthly     | .....                                                                        | 1,500        |
| 49                      | "Soltan" ...                                   | Calcutta ...     | Weekly      | Moulvi Muhammad Monirazzam of Chittagong.                                    | 3,000        |
| 50                      | "Sonar Bharat" ...                             | Howrah ..        | Do.         | Baikunta Das Gupta, age 35, Baidya                                           | 2,000        |
| 51                      | "Sri Sri Vishnu Priya-o-Ananda Bazar Patrika." | Calcutta ...     | Do.         | Basik Mohan Chakravarti, age 37, Brahmin.                                    | 500          |
| 52                      | "Swadesh" ...                                  | Ditto ...        | Do.         | S. C. Lahiri, Pat. Lovett and Pundit Baijnath Bidyanidhi.                    | 500          |
| 53                      | "Tamalika" ...                                 | Tamluk ...       | Do.         | Sita Nath Mondal, age 28, Hindu                                              | 500          |
| 54                      | "Twenty-four Parganas Var-tavaha."             | Bhawanipur       | Do.         | Hem Chandra Nag, age 26, Kayastha                                            | 500          |
| HINDI.           |                                                |                  |             |                                                                              |              |
| 55                      | "Bharat Mitra" ...                             | Calcutta ...     | Weekly      | Mahabir Prosad, age 35, Vaisya; and Amrito Lal Chakravarti, age 46, Brahmin. | 3,200        |
| 56                      | "Bihar Bandhu" ...                             | Bankipore        | Do.         | Nanda Kumar Sharma, age 35, Kayastha.                                        | 500          |
| 57                      | "Bir Bharat" ...                               | Calcutta ...     | Do.         | Prantosh Dutta, age 35, Kayastha                                             | 500          |
| 58                      | "Ghar Bandhu" ...                              | Ranchi ...       | Fortnightly | Rev. E. Muller, Superintendent, G. E. L. Mission, Ranchi.                    | 1,000        |
| 59                      | "Gyanoday" ...                                 | Calcutta ...     | Monthly     | .....                                                                        | 4,000        |
| 60                      | "Jain Gajet" ...                               | Arrah ...        | Weekly      | Printed and Published in the United Provinces.                               | 3,000        |
| 61                      | "Jain Pataka" ...                              | Calcutta ...     | Monthly     | .....                                                                        | 500          |
| 62                      | "Hindi Bangavasi" ...                          | Litto ...        | Weekly      | Hari Kisson Joahar, age 30, Khettri                                          | 250          |
| 63                      | "Hitavarta" ...                                | Ditto ...        | Do.         | Rao Purandkar, age 29, Mahratta Brahmin.                                     | 200          |
| 64                      | "Lakshmi Upadesh Lahri"                        | Gaya ...         | Monthly     | .....                                                                        | 500          |
| 65                      | "Marwari" ...                                  | Calcutta ...     | Do.         | R. K. Tebrevala, age 34, Hindu Agar-walla.                                   | 500          |
| 66                      | "Marwari Bandhu" ...                           | Ditto ...        | Weekly      | .....                                                                        | 255          |
| 67                      | "Narsingha" ...                                | Ditto ...        | Monthly     | .....                                                                        |              |
| 68                      | "Siksha" ...                                   | Bankipore        | Weekly      | Gohkaran Singh, age 38, Babhan                                               |              |
| PERSIAN.         |                                                |                  |             |                                                                              |              |
| 69                      | "Roznama-i-Mu k a d d a s -Hablul Matin"       | Calcutta ...     | Weekly      | Syed Jalaluddin Alq Husaini, Muham-madan.                                    |              |
| URDU.            |                                                |                  |             |                                                                              |              |
| 70                      | "Ayini-i-chatar Gupt" ...                      | Bankipore        | Weekly      | .....                                                                        | 250          |
| 71                      | "Al Panch" ...                                 | Ditto ...        | Do.         | .....                                                                        | 200          |
| 72                      | "Bihar Gazette" ...                            | Ditto ...        | Do.         | Muhammad Murad Ali Khan, age 42, Quazi Abdul Latif, age 35, Muham-madan.     |              |
| 73                      | "Dar-us Sultanat" ...                          | Calcutta ...     | Do.         | .....                                                                        |              |
| 74                      | "Khawah Mokhab Panch"                          | Gaya ...         | Do.         | .....                                                                        |              |
| URIYA.           |                                                |                  |             |                                                                              |              |
| 75                      | "Garjatba sini" ...                            | Talcher ...      | Weekly      | Bhagi Ruth Misra, age 40, Brahmin.                                           | 600          |
| 76                      | "Manorama" ...                                 | Baripada ...     | Do.         | .....                                                                        | 500          |
| 77                      | "Nilachal Samachar" ...                        | Puri ...         | Do.         | Baidya Nath Singh, age 31, Punjabi                                           | 700          |
| 78                      | "Sambalpur Hitaishini" ...                     | Bamra ...        | Do.         | Dinabandhu Padhan.                                                           | 500          |
| 79                      | "Samvad Vahika" ...                            | Balasore ...     | Do.         | Harish Chandra Sarkar, age 52, Sad-gop.                                      | 500          |
| 80                      | "Uriya and Navasamvad" ...                     | Cuttack ...      | Do.         | Ram Tarak Sen, age 47, Tamuli                                                | 500          |
| 81                      | "Utkal Darpan" ...                             | Sambalpur        | Do.         | .....                                                                        | 500          |
| 82                      | "Utkal Dipika" ...                             | Cuttack ...      | Do.         | Gauri Sankar Roy, age 75                                                     | 500          |
| 83                      | "Utkal Sakti" ...                              | Calcutta ...     | Do.         | .....                                                                        | 500          |
| 84                      | "Utkal Varta" ...                              | Ditto ...        | Do.         | Moni Lal Moherana, age 45, Hindu Karmokar.                                   |              |

Additions to, and alterations in, the list of Vernacular Newspapers.

| No.             | Name of Publication.    | Where published. | Edition. | Name, caste and age of Editor. | Circulation. |
|-----------------|-------------------------|------------------|----------|--------------------------------|--------------|
| Bengali. |                         |                  |          |                                |              |
| 5A              | "Bangla" ...            | Santipur ...     | Weekly   | Aravinda Ghosh                 | ...          |
| 14A             | "Dharma" ...            | Calcutta ...     | Do.      | ...                            | ...          |
| 28A             | "Medini Bandhav" ...    | Midnapore        | Do.      | ...                            | ...          |
| 23A             | "Karmayogin" ...        | Calcutta ...     | Do.      | ...                            | ...          |
| Hindi.   |                         |                  |          |                                |              |
| 54A             | "Bharat Bandhu" ...     | Calcutta ...     | Weekly   | Jaganand Kumar                 | ...          |
| 68A             | "Tirhut Samachar" ...   | Muzaffarpur      | Do.      | ...                            | ...          |
| 68B             | "Sri Sanatan Dharm" ... | ...              | ...      | ...                            | ...          |
| Urdu.    |                         |                  |          |                                |              |
| 74A             | "Najmul Akhbar" ...     | Calcutta ...     | Weekly   | S. M. Nazim Husain             | ...          |
| 74B             | "Star of India" ...     | Arrah ...        | Do.      | Zahurul Haque                  | ...          |
| Bengali. |                         |                  |          |                                |              |
| 47              | "Sandhya" ...           | Calcutta ...     | Weekly   | Ceased to exist                | ...          |

I.—FOREIGN POLITICS.

IN giving a translation of an article in the Pioneer dwelling on the necessity of equipping the present Persian army with new arms and entrusting the charge of training it to a few English as well as Indian officers, so that it may be in a position to put down the Baluchis and extirpate the robbers infesting Kirman and its highways in South-East Persia, the Namai Muqaddas Hablul Matin [Calcutta] of the 6th September observes :—

NAMAI MUQADDAS
HABUL MATIN,
Sept. 6th, 1909.

The Pioneer on the need of the Persian army.
The Pioneer has sought the remedy for his own disease in advising the Persians to entertain the services of the English officers for the organisation of the Persian army. To-day, the English and the Russians are earnestly bent on giving effect to the plan embodied in their Convention. Their solicitude for the welfare of Persia is but a stroke of diplomacy. The Persians are fully aware of it and have a vivid recollection of the harm done to them by Colonel Liakhoff. The British movements in South and South-East Persia have been adopted as a reasonable excuse by the Russians for staying their forces in the North and North-West Persia.

2. Referring to Reuter's telegram that the Russian guards have captured Rahim Khan for his having taken part in the fight at Tabriz, the Namai Muqaddas Hablul Matin [Calcutta] of the 6th September observes :—

NAMAI MUQADDAS
HABUL MATIN,
Sept. 6th, 1909.

Capture of Rahim Khan by the Russians.
The imputation of the Russian papers against Suttar Khan's cavalry for (disturbances) between Jalafa and Tabriz has proved false now that Rahim Khan's cavalry has been held responsible for them. We believe that the Russian papers had wilfully perverted the truth for saving the life of Rahim Khan. It is sure that the new Persian regime will take over Rahim Khan from the Russians and mete out due punishment to him after trial.

3. Referring to the Amir of Kabul's recent orders granting permission to all well-to-do Hindus and Muhammadans in Afghanistan to keep arms, the Hindi Bangavasi [Calcutta] of the 13th September asks if the Government of this country cannot reduce the rigours of the Arms Act even to some extent.

HINDI BANGAVASI,
Sept. 13th, 1909.

4. The Hitvarta [Calcutta] of the 9th September continues its article "Indians in foreign land" (vide paragraph 7 of the last week's report), in which it gives an account of the Indians in the Transvaal after the conclusion of the Boer War.

HITVARTA,
Sept. 9th, 1909.

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a)—Police.

5. The Nayak [Calcutta] of the 10th September writes :—

The new Police Administration Report.
We said something very briefly regarding the Administration Report of the Bengal Police yesterday. We shall speak at some more length to-day. In this report, in the section headed "Political Crime", a good many old unpleasant incidents have been recalled, and the Englishman in reproducing them has used (literally, used as a trap) the heading "Political crime in Bengal: a startling record." Perusing this section, we infer that there is no second creature more reckless and shameless than he who was entrusted with the writing of this report. Moreover this writer, in the report he has written, has distinctly committed contempt of court.

NAYAK,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

In this report it has been distinctly written "from the plans and documents found in Muraripukur Garden, it appears that one branch of the organisation was to devote itself to dacoity." Whether the documents and plans which the Police allege were found at Muraripukur Garden were really at that garden, or whether, in order to facilitate the case, they came and got mixed up with the things found at that garden, is still to be adjudicated by the Courts. It has been most improper for the writer of the report to say anything at all about this matter which is sub judice. As the Police declare that all those things and documents were found at the Muraripukur Garden, so many people of the country also say that the Police have manufactured all these things. The Courts will decide which party says the truth, and that decision is still impending; what then is the value of the statement of the writer of the report?

The attempt to wreck Sir Andrew Fraser's train, Noren Gossain's murder, the affair relating to Higginbotham of Kushtea, the throwing of the bomb at the Chandernagore Mayor's residence, the Muzaffarpur bombs, the bombs sent to the Krishnagar Judge, the Midnapore conspiracy, the Bighati dacoity, the Morehal dacoity, the bomb throwing (on carriages) on the Eastern Bengal State Railway, and greatest of all, the famous (Muraripukur) bomb affair, have been included in this paragraph entitled "Political crime." In judging of them one by one, in almost every one of them, Police machination is apparent. Then again some (of them) have been proved to be false in the Courts, and some (others) are still sub judice. Under the circumstances, it betrays the utmost shamelessness on the part of the authorities of the Police Department to try to take credit to themselves by exaggerating these (incidents) and making them appear in the body of the report. As for the disgraceful doings of the Police which have been revealed in connexion with some of these, had they been (revealed) in any other civilised country, every one of the Police Department, high or low, detective or otherwise, would have been expelled from the country in the utmost disgrace (lit., with heads shaved, and whey poured on them, and to the fanning of the kula or winnowing basket). But in this country, far from all this the authorities are profuse (lit. having four mouths) in praising the Police. Fie.

In alluding to a dacoity in the Howrah district, it has been written in the report, "the enquiry did not produce any material evidence, but strong suspicion fell on certain local people who are known to be strongly in favour of swadeshi and boycott." We did not believe that any man with a sense of responsibility could pen such an impudent, despicable lie. The enquiry did not bring forth any evidence, and yet suspicion fell on men who were at the bottom of the swadeshi and boycott movements—there are no reasons (assigned), no arguments—because they are strongly attached to the swadeshi-boycott, therefore they incur suspicion.

Throwing blame in this fashion on the patriotic feelings of the people is becoming only to the officials of this country.

Political crime, what is called such, does not exist in this country, will not, and cannot. The entire nature of the people of this country is opposed to crimes of that nature.

Things which are being called political crimes in the Police Report, did not shoot forth even sprouts in this country. It is the Police themselves who have made mountains of mole-hills. There is a saying that if a master directs one to be seized and brought, the servants bring (the man) bound. The Bengal Police is in the like predicament. The spirit of love for one's own nation which has blossomed forth in this country, and the efforts being made for self-reliance (lit., self-settlement) the Police cannot bear to see at all, and that is why, in order to suppress them, the Police has been trying for the past few years to destroy the new force in the country by resort to various forms of oppression, injustice, falsehood, fraud, forgery and trickery. And it is the same Police who now loudly sing the faults of the people of the country, and the Lieutenant-Governor, the arbiter of our destinies, is praising this police!!

Considering the bitter and despicable opinion which the Police authorities have given expression to in the paragraph of the Police Annual Administration Report entitled "Political crime," regarding the respectable classes of the country, and the ardent adherents of swadeshi-boycott, it is proper that a strong protest should be made against this report everywhere in this country.

DAILY HITAVADI,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

6. A perusal of the Police Administration Report for 1903, says the Daily Hitavadi [Calcutta] of the 10th September, makes one think that Sir Edward Baker is possessed with the Fraserian spirit to some extent. We fail to see the justification of his lamenting the unwillingness

The Police Administration
Report for 1908-09.

of the people to help and co-operate with the police. The Lieutenant-Governor may, if he chooses, play the ignoramus and say whatever he likes, but does he not know what sort of stuff the Police is made of? Can people dare go near the Police who furnish a proof of the dreadful character of the British Raj? So long as the Police do not consider themselves to be the servants of the public, so long will the people keep aloof from the Police.

7. The Nayak [Calcutta] of the 9th September writes:—

The Police Administration Report for 1908. We do not wish to tax the reader's patience by reproducing in our columns the copious showers of praise which the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has poured upon that pet-child of the Executive—the Police. We cannot, however, pass over the Lieutenant-Governor's remarks regarding the unwillingness of the people to help the Police, which His Honour ascribes to a want of public spirit. We may tell His Honour that the people of this country have not yet become so conscienceless as to help the Police in affairs like the Barrah Dacoity case, the Midnapur Bomb case, etc.

NAYAK,
Sept. 9th, 1909.

8. The Nayak [Calcutta] of the 10th September sarcastically writes

The Government and the Police. that there is a story in Bengali of a pampered youth who insisted on making his guru whom he had offended favour him with the dust of his feet, even though he had to shoe-beat that guru to make him show this favour. In a similar spirit Government wants to exact loyalty and co-operation from us by setting the Police on us. Some people blame the Lieutenant-Governor for his recent praise of the Police. But indeed the Police have been of such service, that His Honour, had he been a tall man, would have taken them up in his arms and kissed them. Think of the half-a-dozen fine-arms and the quarter-dozen bombs discovered at the Muraripukur Garden. It is true that the lads themselves pointed out where the things were, but still the Police at least had the trouble in carrying them away. Again though the real offenders concerned in the dacoities which are being committed in different parts of the country are not being caught, still some people are being hauled up, and who could have done that but the Police? It is wrong therefore to be annoyed at the favours lavished on the Police. Do you not see that it is all a counterblast to the judicial condemnation of the force?

NAYAK,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

9. Quoting the sentence "There is a steady and continuous improvement in the efficiency and honesty of the whole force" from the Government Resolution on the Police Administration Report for the last year the Hindi Bangavasi [Calcutta] of the 13th September remarks:—Happy would be the day when the people would also praise the Police with Sir Edward Baker.

The Police Administration Report.

HINDI BANGAVASI,
Sept. 13th, 1909.

10. Referring to the Annual Report on the Police Administration in Eastern Bengal recently published, the Sri Sri Vishnu Priya-o-Ananda Bazar Patrika [Calcutta] of the 9th September writes:—

The Annual Report on Police Administration in Eastern Bengal.

SRI SRI VISHNU
PRIYA-O-ANANDA
BAZAR PATRIKA,
Sept. 9th, 1909.

A certificate of high praise has been, as usual, granted to the Police. If His Honour had cited some instances of breaches of the peace, we should have been gratified. For, in that case, it would have been made clear that political agitation had not caused breaches of the peace anywhere in the country, and that, on the contrary, those who were charged with keeping the peace, had themselves been guilty of committing breaches of the peace.

11. Referring to the want of detective ability and the employment of questionable means by Police officers in Eastern Bengal, which His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Eastern Bengal and Assam mentions in a recent Resolution, the Bangavasi [Calcutta] of the 11th September says:—

The Lieutenant-Governor of Eastern Bengal and Assam on the shortcomings of the Police.

BANGAVASI,
Sept. 11th, 1909.

As His Honour has openly admitted these shortcomings of the Police, there is hope that steps will soon be taken for Police reform. Will not the same thing be done also in Bengal?

DAILY HITAVADI,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

12. The following is a full translation of a paragraph which appears in the Daily Hitavadi [Calcutta] of the 10th September:—

Alleged defilement of Hindu temples at Jagatdal.

Interference with the Hindu Religion.—A reporter from Jagatdal in the 24-Parganas has informed (us) that there are on the bank of the Ganges at that place temples dedicated to Siva, founded by the late Fakir Chandra Sen, and a bathing ghat. Nearly a hundred years ago Fakir Chandra was invested by the East India Company with the title of "Dewan." The Goswami Babus, Zemindars of Serampur, of late bought the Zemindary of Jagatdal. They (in their turn) again sold this ghat together with the temples of Siva to a white mercantile company for the purpose of building a Jute factory. On the merchants, who own the factory, proposing to demolish (literally, level to the dust) those temples, the local Hindu inhabitants entered a strong protest, and the demolition of the temples was postponed. About five or six nights ago somebody removed the Siva Lingas from the temples and kept them in the Bazar. The present descendants of the Sen family have had the matter properly diarised by the Police. We hear that the Hindu labourers belonging to the Jute mills of Jagatdal, Kankinara, Nailhati, etc., have become highly excited over the matter. We request the authorities to turn their attention to this matter from now.

BASUMATI,
Sept. 11th, 1909.

13. The Basumati [Calcutta] of the 11th September reports how last week the European Assistant Manager of the Chandighat Tea estate in Silchar shot a neighbouring coolie woman to death. It appears that he was shooting dogs, but the quarter he chose to take aim in was thickly populated by coolies. Under the circumstances the case, though accidental, arose from a culpable indifference and carelessness. Government should make an enquiry into the matter.

(b)—Working of the Courts.

BURDWAN SANJIVANI,
Sept. 7th, 1909.

14. On the authority of the Desh Sevak of Sylhet the Burdwan Sanjivani [Burdwan] of the 7th September narrates how lately the Subdivisional Magistrate of Karimganj gave the following letter to a tea garden coolie to carry to his manager whom he was afraid to face for fear of chastisement to ask for his wages—

"Write to the Manager to pay the man, also write not to beat him unless necessary."

The paper also points out how sometime ago this same Magistrate wrote as follows in instituting proceedings against one Alimuddin for having brought a malicious suit against a local European Engineer:—

"I know the case under section 211 of the Penal Code would not stand, but my object was to harass the man."

In commenting on these incidents, the paper remarks that this lamentable travesty of justice will add to the unrest, and the matter demands the notice of the higher authorities.

SAMAY,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

15. Referring to the acquittal of the Manager of the Delkush Tea Garden (in Sylhet, who was lately charged with having committed outrage on a cooly girl, the Samay [Calcutta] of the 10th September writes:—

The Deputy Commissioner of Cachar who tried the case did not believe the girl to be under twelve years of age, in spite of the evidence of the Civil Surgeon; he was also of opinion that the girl was a consenting party. We have heard that the Deputy Commissioner formed his idea about the girl's age simply by casting a glance at her face. The result of the trial has taken everybody by surprise. Will not the Lieutenant-Governor of Eastern Bengal and Assam call for the papers relating to the case, and see for himself whether justice has really been done or not?

HITAVADI,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

16. The Hitavadi [Calcutta] of the 10th September draws the attention of Sir L. Hare to the facts of the case of indecent assault brought against a Tea Planter by one Damri Sonar, on behalf of his daughter Gulzari. It appears that against the evidence of the girl's father and of the Civil Surgeon, and trusting to his own impressions, the Deputy Commissioner held that her age was over 12, and on this ground acquitted the accused.

Dilkush outrage case.

17. The Bharat Bandhu [Calcutta] of the 8th September criticises the judgment in the Dilkush

BHARAT BANDHU,
Sept. 8th, 1909.

(Kachar) outrage case.

18. Speaking of the gradual change in the declaration form to be signed in Court by those who intend to run a new press, the Hitvarta [Calcutta] of the 9th September

HITVARTA,
Sept. 9th, 1909.

observes that the change is so marked now that a person signing the declaration form has to get himself identified by a Vakil by paying him a fee of Rs. 2; and says it is at a loss to understand what the Government, the Magistrates and the Police mean by the act when they know that Vakils do not mind indentifying a person who pays them their fee, be he quite a stranger to them.

19. The Daily Hitavadi [Calcutta] of the 15th September complains of the undue protraction of the Alipore Bomb conspiracy case; and says that the men who were sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment by the Sessions Judge of Alipore, should not be made to undergo penal labour until the appeal to the High Court is disposed of. By what law can such a procedure be justified? Those who encourage such barbarous methods, ought to feel ashamed to pride themselves on their high civilisation.

The injustice to the prisoners in the Alipore Bomb conspiracy case.

DAILY HITAVADI,
Sept. 15th, 1909.

(c)—Jails.

20. The Medini Bandhab [Midnapore] of the 6th September publishes the following:—

MEDINI BANDHAB,
Sept. 6th, 1909.

"The Jail experiences of Santosh."

I cannot describe how I felt when I came to learn from the warder that my father, on hearing that I had made a false confession according to the instructions of the Police, was frantically striking his own head with his hands and was weeping, saying: "He has brought on ruin."

While confined in my solitary cell at night, a fearful darkness enveloping everything around, I asked myself, Why did I sign the false confession, knowing that what Mr. Nelson recorded purporting to be my voluntary confession was totally false? Was it to save my father from the horrors of the Jail? But who is to release him? I cannot believe that he will be released. Whom can I trust? I had not the slightest idea that any Magistrate was capable of doing what Mr. Weston actually did at the time of the confession. What reliance can, therefore, be placed upon his assurances? What else could I do than trust him? I am floating on a shoreless ocean, and am alternately sinking and rising by being struck by the waves. If Mother Kali will take me to the shore, I may be saved; otherwise I shall be swept away to eternity. My anxious thoughts have already become too much for me.

The worries are, no doubt, intolerable; but they are inseparable from me. Some anxiety or other is ever present. They are certainly not going to arrest my revered mother. I must now see how I can get my father's release. Mr. Weston himself said to me "I will consider about your father's release to-morrow." My father's release to-morrow therefore is certain.

The 30th of July came, and it vanished completely in the womb of infinity. I saw neither the Maulvi nor Lal Mohan; nor did the order of the release of my father come. Just before the evening of the 31st July I received information that the police had searched the house of the late Babu Gangaram Datta and discovered another bomb there, and had arrested eight persons, including Sarada Datta, Barada Datta and others. I knew that this was the poisonous fruit of my false confession. My father was not released still; and in addition I got this piece of sad news; repentance was consuming me.

Two or three days after my confession was recorded, Mr. Maddox, the Commissioner of the Burdwan Division, came and visited my solitary cell on the 1st or the 2nd of August. Next day, at about 4 P.M., Mr. Weston came to my cell. I was anxious to have an interview with him. He enquired of me: "How are you doing?" I said: "You said that my father would be released on the day next following that on which I would make my confession. You are an experienced and able Magistrate. How is it that your word is not being acted upon? What again do you intend to do respecting myself?"

Mr. Weston said in reply:—

"I would have released your father the next day after you made your confession; but as your father's release on that very day might raise doubts about your confession in the mind of the Judge, I have therefore settled to release him on the 7th August next. Your father, moreover, is not being put to any inconvenience there. Arrangements have been made to provide him with two Burma cheroots, milk and potatoes. And as you have been made King's evidence, your release is certain; you need not be anxious in the least for that."

So saying Mr. Weston proceeded towards my father's cell. On that day Mr. Weston was accompanied by the son-in-law of Syam Babu, the jailor.

After the departure of Mr. Weston from the fansi-kamra (the cell for the condemned), a kala-pagri (a man with a black pagri) came and informed me that Mr. Weston had told my father that my elder brother must first give evidence in favour of Government, and then my father would be released. My father refused to comply with Mr. Weston's request, and told him that he was doing a very wicked act by compelling Santosh to make a false confession, and by confining him unjustly.

The kala-pagri told me further: "Babu, you have plunged the knife into your own throat by making the confession through the machination of the Police. Mark, full three-fourths of the prisoners in this Jail confessed falsely through the machinations and the sulm of the Police and are undergoing their terms of imprisonment. There is no chance of your safety, and your imprisonment is certain."

Hearing all these from the kala-pagri, I gave up all hope of my father's release.

In the morning of the 5th August, Captain Weinman came and took me to the hospital cell. The hospital cell must be considered to be a very heaven compared with the solitary cell. There the prisoners were working, and I could see the faces of human beings. There lemons were seen on lemon trees; bels were hanging on bel trees; many kinds of flower plants were seen there. Altogether the sight pleased me immensely. As the prisoners in the hospital cell are not worked at night, I slept soundly the whole night.

On the 6th August, as I was going to speak to a respectable prisoner, I saw Captain Weinman and the Jailor Babu near me. The former told the latter something in a whisper, and I was taken back to my old cell which resembled hell.

To-day was the 7th of August, and I eagerly expected my father's release. But far from my father being released, we were not even made to appear in Mr. Nelson's court.

Repeatedly baffled in the expectation of my father's release, I grew anxious to see Mr. Weston. The Maulvi had told me: "Whenever you may wish to see the Magistrate, write to him saying I will make a confession again, and the Magistrate will send for you." Following the Maulvi's instructions, I wrote the following letter to the Magistrate on the 9th August:—

Jail Miscellaneous Form No. 87.

To—THE MAGISTRATE,

Midnapore.

HONOURED SIR,

The humble petition of Santosh Chandra Das most respectfully sheweth:—

That the petitioner's father is an infirm and old man, aged about sixty-five years. He has defectiveness in both of his eyes; he is also suffering from diabetes and from a severe type of headache. And it is also clear from the confession of the petitioner that his old father is quite innocent and in no way connected with case.

The date of appearance of the petitioner and his father was fixed on the 7th instant, but they were not brought to the Court on that day. If the petitioner's old father be detained here for any longer period, he may be deprived of his life. Under these circumstances, the petitioner most humbly prays to your honour that your honour will be graciously pleased to do this act of kindness by releasing his father on bail. The petitioner also requests to know the order which your honour be pleased to pass on him after hearing his statement. The petitioner also wishes to make a further statement before your honor. Lastly, the petitioner most humbly begs that the food daily given to him is of the same kind, and the petitioner is gradually decreasing in weight; therefore the petitioner prays that your honour will be kind enough to allow him to take food sent from his home.

I have etc.,

The 9th August 1908.

SANTOSH CHANDRA DAS.

At 1 p.m., on the 12th August, I was asked by Jotish Babu, Assistant Jailor, to follow him to go to the Magistrate. I accompanied the Maulvi and Lal Mohan to the Magistrate's kuthi and saw him. I made many entreaties to Mr. Weston to release my father on bail, but to no effect.

Mr. Weston told me: "I would have released your father on bail; but Mr. K. B. Dutt and Gossain Datta are trying hard to get their brother Madhusudan Datta released on bail. If bail be granted to your father, it cannot be refused to Madhusudan Datta. Your father therefore will have to remain confined for a few days more. Consider, again, that your father has to suffer no inconvenience whatever in Jail. All the comforts that could possibly have been provided in a Jail, have been provided for him. I will do all that will secure your good. I have got many proofs against your elder brother. Ask your elder brother also to become a witness in favour of Government; he too, then, will be saved. Why are you afraid of your country (men)? The Military Police will guard your house constantly. The Raja, Abinash Mitra and others are certain to be transported to the Andamans. What need you fear?"

I said: "I shall see my elder brother first and ask his opinion. I will then let you know about it."

The Maulvi said: "The Magistrate Sahib Bahadur can do everything. Do you therefore induce your elder brother to become Government witness, as the Magistrate directs. You will then continue in your service; your elder brother will get back his service here; and you and your father are sure to be released. But if your elder brother does not give evidence in favour of Government, I can say nothing about him."

I said to the Maulvi: "That mouth of yours utters everything. How can I say anything about my elder brother without first seeing him? Arrange, therefore, to enable me to see him." Mr. Weston said: "You will see your brother at this very place to-morrow."

The Maulvi and Lal Mohan then took me to the Jail and left me there.

At about 2 p.m., on the 13th August, I was again taken to Mr. Weston's kuthi. I found my elder brother and my nephew Jotindra standing on the verandah. The Maulvi took me and my elder brother to Mr. Weston, who asked my elder brother many questions, one after another, about the attempt to wreck the Lieutenant-Governor's train at Naraingarh, and about secret Samitis. My elder brother answered the questions one after another, saying that he knew nothing. Seeing that Mr. Weston was being angered by my elder brother's replies, I gave him (my elder brother) a hint and told Mr. Weston that I had not yet had any talk with my elder brother."

Mr. Weston said to the Maulvi: "I make over Santosh to the custody of the Police for three days. Santosh will induce Asu to give his consent."

Afterwards Mr. Weston asked my elder brother: "What about Surendra"? My elder brother replied: "I asked Surendra's mother to induce Surendra to confess, but his mother refused."

After salaaming Mr. Weston we all came out. The Maulvi directed my elder brother and Jati to go to the house of Mahendra Daroga (Alas, the man has since died!) after dusk. Lal Mohan had gone out, but arrived at this moment. The Maulvi, Lal Mohan, Asadulla and myself drove in a gharry to the Reserve office. While sitting there, I saw Surendra being dragged to the Reserve office, hand-cuffed, and bound with a rope at the waist, by four constables. At the Maulvi's order the constables took Surendra to the thana.

Lal Mohan drew up a petition to keep me in Police custody, and went to Mr. Nelson; he quickly returned after getting his petition sanctioned. We arrived at the house of Mahendra Daroga via Sati-Kunda. Betel and tobacco continued to be served at frequent intervals.

On my elder brother and Jatin arriving at the house of Mahendra Daroga, they were asked to depart and come back the next morning.

At about 9 at night a plateful of tiffin and bedding were sent from my house. Mahendra and myself ate the tiffin. Two or three more Darogas arrived. Playing at cards commenced, in which I took part. The playing went on till 1 A.M.

At 7 o'clock in the morning of the 14th August the Maulvi, Lal Mohan, my elder brother and Jatin all came together, and Surendra was also brought to the house of Mahendra Daroga from the Thana lock-up.

[Here ends the tenth canto entitled "Preparation" of the novel called "The Jail experiences of Santosh."]

(d)—Education.

SHIKSHA,
Sept. 6th, 1909.

21. The Shiksha [Arrah] of the 6th September is glad to note that

Mr. Preston the Inspector of Schools, Patna.

Mr. E. L. Preston, Inspector of Schools, Patna Division, has a good taste for Hindi, and speaks it correctly. He is famous for his geniality and other good qualities. A friend of the paper after an interview with him has gone so far as to say that if all the Englishmen are of the same character, the malicious persons denounce them without any reason.

BASUMATI,
Sept. 11th, 1909.

22. The Basumati [Calcutta] of the 11th September hopes that the

The Puja vacation for the Presidency College students.

Puja holidays of the Presidency College students will not be cut down. If necessary the Christmas and the Good Friday holidays may be reduced.

SAMAY,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

23. The Samay [Calcutta] of the 10th September fully approves of the Juvenile smoking.

steps which the Director of Public Instruction, Burma, is going to take to put a stop to juvenile smoking, and hopes that Mr. James, the able chief of the Education Department of Bengal, will also do the same.

PRASUN,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

24. The Prasun [Katwa] of the 10th September says that the system of primary education which has been introduced into the country is most unsatisfactory. Formerly the text-books were such as could impart some proficiency to the boys in their mother tongue. But now by the study of text-books edited by Messrs. Macmillan & Co. even such a purpose is not served. The Kindergarten system is an excellent system no doubt. But can it be said that that system can properly be followed in this country as in European countries? Low-paid teachers can never be expected to teach pupils satisfactorily according to the Kindergarten system. Text-books written according to that system are unintelligible to Indian children. There is not a single good text-book which the writer is aware of. If good text-books are not forthcoming first of all, teaching according to the Kindergarten system must be a farce.

Primary education in Bengal.

(e)—Local Self Government and Municipal Administration.

DAILY HITAVADI,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

25. The Daily Hitavadi [Calcutta] of the 10th September writes :—

Adulteration of mustard oil in Calcutta.

If, as Rai Kailas Chandra Bose Bahadur said at a recent meeting of the Calcutta Medical Club, it be true that according to a Government Circular dealers in mustard oil can sell adulterated oil with impunity, if only they declare their stuff as such, that Circular ought to be revoked. The Government perhaps thinks that if any oil is declared to be adulterated, buyers will take care not to buy it. But it is not possible for the general public to be aware of the Circular; and even if they are, they cannot help buying adulterated oil, if pure oil be a rarity in the market. Pure mustard oil is manufactured in the Jails, but very few people know where such oil can be obtained. It is not only mustard oil, but almost every kind of food-stuff that is used in Calcutta is adulterated, and the Municipality, which maintains a costly establishment for the purpose of looking after the sanitation of the city, should see that the people of Calcutta get a pure supply of food.

26. In commenting on Dr. Hari Dhan Dutt's questions at a recent meeting of the Calcutta Corporation, regarding the adulteration of mustard-oil by bloomless oil, the Nayak [Calcutta] of the 10th September writes:—

NAYAK,
Sept. 18th, 1909.

Adulteration of mustard oil in Calcutta.

The citizens of Calcutta go on paying their taxes and dying! Fate—it is all fate!

Beri-Beri in Calcutta.

27. In connexion with the recent outbreak of Beri-Beri in Calcutta, the Basumati [Calcutta] of the 11th September calls on the local Municipality to take prompt steps to prevent the adulteration of edibles like oil, ghee, and sugar and also to insist on sweetmeats being exposed for sale in shops only in glass-covers.

BASUMATI,
Sept. 11th, 1909.

28. The Bihar Bandhu [Bankipore] of the 11th September prays Government for an enquiry with a view to put a check to the illegal proceedings of the farmers of the ferries on the Ganges, who generally extort double the stipulated fares from the persons to be ferried over to the other side of the river.

BIHAR BANDHU,
Sept. 11th, 1909.

29. Referring to a notification issued by the Howrah Municipality, inviting candidates for the post of an Inspector of lighting on Rs. 70, with allowances and good prospects, whose qualifications need not be higher than those of one who has passed only the Entrance Examination, the Ekata [Calcutta] of the 13th September says that the bare perusal of the notification suggests that the appointment is meant for some worthless relation of some worthless Commissioner. The throwing away of the poor rate-payers' money in such fashion deserves the severest condemnation.

EKATA,
Sept. 13th, 1909.

(f)—Questions affecting the land.

30. The Nihar [Contai] of the 7th September quotes the opinion of Dr. Rashbehari Ghose in proof of the fact that persons known as chakdars are raiyats, but not tenure-holders. The present Settlement Officer is not entitled to set aside the Jamabandi records of the settlement of 1876-78. The High Court also held that the chakdars were raiyats (Jharu Bera versus Narendra Nath Giri, Appeal No. 72 of 1893, finally disposed of on the 13th April 1895). But the Settlement Court refuses to abide by such decision, and still maintain that Government has not accepted the records of the last settlement and that the chakdars are permanent tenure-holders but not raiyats.

NIHAR,
Aug. 7th, 1909.

31. The Nihar [Contai] of the 7th September maintains that it is a mistake to suppose that section 11 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is a bar to proceedings in a Civil Court against bhagchasis. In proof of its contention, the writer quotes the recent judgment of the High Court delivered by Mr. Justice Caspersz on the 9th August 1909, in which the following points have been decided:—(1) that the bhagchasis are not raiyats; (2) that the acceptance of paddy is not voluntary receipt of rent; and (3) that section 11 of the Tenancy Act is not a bar to a suit of ejectment against bhagechasis.

NIHAR,
Sept. 7th, 1909.

(g)—Railways and Communications, including Canals and Irrigation.

DHARMA,
Sept. 7th, 1909.

32. The Dharma [Calcutta] of the 9th September, in narrating how on the 7th July last an Indian was run over by a train on the Assam-Bengal Railway near Chargola Station sarcastically hints that not much value is attached to his life evidently; for though neither driver nor guard is known to have been promoted for this mishap, nothing serious seems to have been done in this connexion either. Indeed, although the wounded man was in hospital for six hours before dying the Police did not take his name down, and did not inform his wife and relations. This is certainly to the credit of the Railway Police.

A Railway accident.

HOWRAH HITAISHI,
Sept. 11th, 1909.

33. A correspondent of the Howrah Hitaishi [Howrah] of the 11th September gives an account of the severe floods which, he says, have taken place at several villages near Khanakul Krishnagar (in Hooghly). Numbers of people have been rendered homeless and are almost starving. Such floods are not altogether a new thing in those parts, and the writer asks the Government to build an anicut on the Damodar at Begua-Haua, with the object of preventing similar floods in future.

Floods in the Hooghly District.

NAYAK,
Sept. 14th, 1909.

34. The Nayak [Calcutta] of the 14th September publishes a letter from Babu Ram Pada Banerji, proprietor, H. Banerji and Company and Manilal and Company, Jewellers of 50 Garanhatta Street, Calcutta, an eye-witness of the heavy floods in the Damodar, and of the heart-rending scenes, giving a harrowing description of the widespread misery. The plight of the inhabitants of the Arambagh Thana in Hooghly cannot be conceived of by persons who have not actually visited the place. His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor and the District Magistrate will surely do their best; but others should also come forward without any delay to help their distressed countrymen.

Heavy floods in the Damodar river.

BANGAVASI,
Sept. 11th, 1909.

35. The Bangavasi [Calcutta] of the 11th September publishes accounts of heavy floods in the river Damodar from correspondents who have themselves been the victims of the catastrophe. Numberless houses have been thrown down, many householders have been rendered homeless, cattle have hardly any place where to take shelter, and the damage done has been appalling. Government help is piteously prayed for.

Heavy floods in the Damodar.

BANGAVASI,
Sept. 11th, 1909.

36. A correspondent of the Bangavasi [Calcutta] of the 11th September gives a detailed description of the widespread damage and misery caused by heavy floods at Ghatal. The Subdivisional Magistrate of Ghatal is distributing rice only at places bordering on rivers; but if he will enter into the villages, he will perceive the wide extent of the misery, as also how miserably inadequate the aid he is rendering to the hapless sufferers is.

Heavy floods in the Ghatal Subdivision.

DAILY HITAVADI,
Sept. 15th, 1909.

37. A correspondent of the Daily Hitavadi [Calcutta] of the 15th September reports that heavy floods in the Ghatal Subdivision have caused considerable damage to Irpalla and other villages. In this village not less than 300 houses have been destroyed. The floods are due to defective drainage arrangements in these localities. The attention of the Government is drawn to the state of things in these places.

The floods in the Ghatal Subdivision.

BURDWAN SANJIVANI,
Sept. 7th, 1909.

38. The Burdwan Sanjivani [Burdwan] of the 7th September publishes an eloquent appeal to Sir E. Baker for the sake of his reputation for benevolence, justice, and sympathy to take prompt notice of the serious loss caused to the inhabitants of the village of Srikrishnapur in the Jamalpur thana in Burdwan by a recent breach in the Damodar embankment hard by. For five or six years attempts have been fitfully made to close this breach, but in vain. As it is, the hardship of the villagers this year knows no bounds—homeless women and children are finding temporary shelter on the bunds—and crops as well as homes have been rased to the ground.

The Damodar floods.

39. The Daily Hitavadi [Calcutta] of the 7th September calls on Government to take some steps to regulate the river and Railway embankments in Bengal to minimise the destruction caused to life and crops by showers of heavy rainfall.

DAILY HITAVADI,
Sept. 7th, 1909.

40. The Daily Hitavadi [Calcutta] of the 10th of September is much concerned to learn that floods have taken place in many parts of Bengal, and that numerous people have been rendered homeless in Ghatal. The paper asks the Government to take early steps in the matter, for if the water is not drained off soon, it may lead to the breaking out of cholera and other epidemics.

DAILY HITAVADI,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

41. A correspondent of the Daily Hitavadi [Calcutta] of the 10th September invites the attention of the Government to the great inconvenience to which the people of Baragram, Taldanga, Jongal, Nakhuria, Fatehpur, etc. (in the Burdwan district), have been put on account of the bund on the south side of the Ajay river between Fatehpur and Kuragram having been breached and the water flooded all these villages, which were under water for three days. All the paddy crop has been destroyed. This bund, the writer says, has been allowed to be in a state of disrepair for a long time; and unless something is done at an early date to put it in a state of repair, the people will continue to suffer from floods as now.

DAILY HITAVADI,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

Repairs necessary to the bund
on the Ajay river.

(h)—General.

42. The following is the full translation of what appears in the Mihir-o-Sudhakar [Calcutta] of the 10th September under the heading "Mahomedan interest in the administrative reforms" :—

Muhammadan interest in the administrative reforms.

MIHIR-O-SUDHAKAR,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

How much entreaties and prayers have not the Muhammadans made to the Government humbly and with an exposition of the grounds for a separate electorate! No work is done by entreaties and prayers, and nothing has been done in this case also. The Muhammadans had to drink 'per force' the whey* of combined election. The Muhammadans of East Bengal are given the right of electing four members by special election; all other members are to be returned by mixed elections. When there are Hindu zamindars and money-lenders, there will be no room for a single Muhammadan among the members elected by mixed elections. Previous to this one or two Muhammadans might perhaps have passed (managed to get elected) by force of mercy or love; now it is foolishness for them, having the right of special election, to expect that. Like a dwarf (attempting) to attain to the moon it will be ridiculous for Muhammadan zamindars, who are as insignificant as drops of dew in the ocean, to become representatives of zamindars. The final result will come to this, that out of innumerable official and non-official members, the names of the said four Muhammadan members will be found, and the others will be non est. According to Lord Morley's scheme, we might have got a larger number of members in Eastern Bengal. But our chief ground of objection to that was that perhaps in that case there was a possibility of nominal Muhammadans who are beggars of Hindu favour being always returned members, instead of real Muhammadans saturated with Muhammadan ideas whose return is desired by Muhammadans.

In spite of all these disadvantages, we might have got many more Muhammadan members than four in the Legislative Council, according to the scheme proposed by the Secretary of State. A change was made in consequence of prayers and entreaties, but it was a change for the worse. Everything turns out thus, if the luck is bad. The Muhammadans think that if the British supremacy in India ceases, they will be driven out of India after seeing it for some time besmeared with the blood of Hindus and Muhammadans. So the Muhammadans are always anxious to see the Government able and strong. To the Hindus it is just the contrary. This is why the Extremist party is carrying things to excesses in such a way. Even the mad man understands his own good; but it seems as if the present Liberal Government does not understand even that. To strengthen the rights of Muhammadans is the same thing as to strengthen the foundation of the Government. But it seems as if the present Government takes pleasure in weakening the Muhammadans; and it will have to repent for its own acts.

On the other hand, the new method the Government is resorting to for the election of the said four members is most objectionable and dangerous. We wish to discuss it in another article.

HITAVADI,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

43. The Hitavadi [Calcutta] of the 10th September, after lamenting the perversity of sections of its own countrymen which prompts them to seek to take advantage of the Government scheme of separate representation on the new Councils, remarks that the reforms no longer excite any enthusiasm in Bengal for three reasons, viz.—(1) the upholding of the partition, (2) the deportations and (3) the special concessions to Musalmans. In short, the hope raised that the reforms were the earnest of a really conciliatory policy has proved utterly unfounded.

DHARMA,
Sept. 6th 1909.

44. The Dharma [Calcutta] of the 6th September has the following:—

The Reforms.

That the acceptance of the reforms will bring on bad results was said last time, and is not unknown to the people of the country either. If in such a case anybody says that we shall point out the effects of this Reform Scheme, and asks why we should abandon the little advantages which we have been offered by this means, we cannot praise his intelligence or statesmanship. The defects which you will point out are not beyond the conception of the officials, and it is not that they have put these defects into the scheme without knowing them. They knew beforehand that these defects would be protested against, but what they want is that, in spite of the protests, the leaders of the country might not renounce this Reform Scheme and then their purpose will be gained. They have no wish to purge away the defects, for these defects instead of being regarded as such, in their estimation constitute the leading good points of the scheme. The reforms will not augment the power of those people of the country who hanker after freedom; it is the officials themselves who will reign as the undisputed rulers of the land, and as the arbiters in the conflict between the two ever-clashing forces of Hindus and Musalmans. This policy of theirs is not blameworthy, but praiseworthy. They are patriotic; they are looking to the good of their own country, the augmenting of their own power, and the maintenance of their own empire. This policy is not a liberal one; but when a liberal policy is injurious to the interests of the country, it behoves the patriot to resort to an illiberal policy. We used to adopt a liberal policy in indifference to the welfare of our country, to pose as well-wishers of the world, having cast aside patriotism. At present we also look to the welfare of our native country, to the augmenting of our strength, and to the saving of our life. Let the country be saved first, and thereafter we shall have ample occasion for working for the good of the world and for practising a liberal policy.

BHARAT MITRA,
Sept. 11th, 1909.

45. Seeing that the Dravids of Madras have now created an agitation asking

The Dravids of Madras on separate election.

Government for a separate election in the Legislative Council, the Bharat Mitra [Calcutta] of the 11th September observes:—

Come forward, other claimers! Do not allow the opportunity to slip from your hands. The Government has made the way clear for all others by opening the door of liberality to the Musalmans. It is only the Hindus, who though forming a majority, have no opportunity to avail of, and who have had no sanad (proof) of their loyalty. What, if Government were to do one thing? Would it be ill if Government would once for all eliminate the name of the Hindus from the administration of the country?

HITAVADI,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

46. The Hitavadi [Calcutta] of the 10th September notices how opinion against the deportations is gathering volume both amongst Anglo-Indians and amongst the English public at home and then goes on to appeal to Government to release the deportees forthwith if it wishes to save the last vestiges of its prestige.

The deportations.

Certainly knowing all the facts of the Dhingra murder, Government cannot be deterred by that incident from doing prompt justice to the deportees.

47. The Bangavasi [Calcutta] of the 11th September writes :—

BANGAVASI,
Sept. 11th, 1909.

Although the Police Bill has been sent back to the Select Committee, nobody knows what will happen. The apprehension of the public is due to the fact that the Bill has not been finally abandoned. This is quite natural, because what is really death-dealing, must cause grave anxiety so long as it is not thrown away for ever.

"The duties of the ruler and the ruled."

We again ask His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor to do his duty by the people and withdraw the Police Bill. We unhesitatingly declare that the present situation in Bengal does not justify such a harsh measure.

Duties there are many which ought to claim the attention of His Honour. It is no part of his duty to provide for the entrance of the police into the houses of peaceful Bengalis at dead of night in search of imaginary bombs. It is His Honour's duty to look to the wants and grievances of the people.

O, Sir Edward Baker, Lord of Bengal, you have been in Bengal not for a day or two, not for a year or two, but for over twenty years. Don't you therefore know what the wants, the grievances of the Bengalis are? Let that pass; we will to-day invite your attention to some of our wants and sufferings.

We have again and again drawn attention to the scarcity of water and have said that the chief duty of the ruler is to remove this scarcity. We do not mean to charge Government with indifference, but such is our misfortune that the evil remains as it is. We do not lose sight of the fact that much of our energies is spent on useless political agitation. But there is yet another important consideration. Can Government expect that the people, poor as they are, will contribute a third of the expenses necessary for making arrangements for the supply of drinking-water? That scourges like malaria and cholera which carry off thousands of the people every year, are solely due to want of good drinking-water cannot be doubted. A wise Editor has said :—

"There is no doubt that the want of drinking-water is mainly responsible for malaria, cholera and several other diseases which are thickening the population so rapidly year after year."

It must, however, be admitted that the Hindu has lost his religious character, and this loss accounts for the present degraded condition. The cow is no longer venerated and taken care of as in times past, and the result is the scarcity of milk, the food for infants. Go and watch any burning ground, and you will find that numerous dead bodies of infants are being burnt to ashes. If the tendencies of the people had not been perverted, if they had not given up their religious practices, could the frightful adulteration of food-stuffs have taken place? It will not do to hold the rulers alone responsible for all our misfortunes.

If His Honour will only set apart a fund for the supply of drinking-water, he will set a good example which will surely be followed by the people. Let his Honour give up useless measures and turn to useful acts, and the people will not sit still, but will come forward to co-operate with the Government.

48. The Samay [Calcutta] of the 10th September writes :—

SAMAY,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

The Midnapore affairs.

One by one the principal actors who figured in the recent "sport" at Midnapore have made their exit from the stage. Mr. Weston has gone home on eighteen months' furlough; Captain Weinman, the well known Superintendent of Jail, whose fame travelled as far as England, has been transferred to another station; Maulvi Muzarul Haq, the Deputy Superintendent of Police, who took a prominent part in the performance, has gone away on three months' leave; and Inspector Lal Mohan, that repository of many a virtue, has also left Midnapore on leave. For more than a year the people of Midnapore had to pass through much trouble and anxiety, and they will now have peace. The Executive had an idea that about two hundred of the local people had formed a conspiracy against the Government. It is, however, well known to everybody that the High Court took quite a contrary view of the situation. Who knows whom these worthies of the Midnapore Executive will try to put into trouble next, when they come back on the expiry of their leave?

HITAVADI,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

49. The Hitavadi [Calcutta] of the 10th September cannot understand why the Sheriff of Bombay, an honorary officer, should be made to part with his liberty like paid officials of Government, and prohibited from giving expression to the views of his fellow citizens on the Indian question in South Africa. The Governor of Bombay was known to be a liberal statesman, but evidently India has proved too much for his liberalism.

DAILY HITAVADI,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

50. Referring to the arrival in India of His Excellency Sir O'Moore Creagh, the Daily Hitavadi [Calcutta] of the 10th September writes:—

Our only concern with the Military Department is that we are to find money for its expenditure, and so it does not matter anything to us whether one Chief departs or another comes in. But then there will no doubt be some uneasiness felt in the Military Department over the advent of Sir O'Moore Creagh.

BANGAVASI,
Sept. 11th, 1909.

51. It is believed, writes the Bangavasi [Calcutta] of the 11th September, that the release of the 50 indigo rioters of Bettiah was due to Mr. Gourlay's report. This, if true, reflects much credit on that officer. Why cannot Government publish Mr. Gourlay's report?

HITAVADI,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

52. The Hitavadi [Calcutta] of the 10th September asks for the publication of Mr. Gourlay's report on the indigo riots at Bettiah, if only to remove the popular impression that Government sacrificed the raiyats to the indigo planters.

BANGAVASI,
Sept. 11th, 1909.

53. The Bangavasi [Calcutta] of the 11th September refers to the discontent said to be prevailing among the officers of the Telegraph Department and says that since the introduction of Mr. Newlands' reforms discontent has been rife in all grades of the Department. The authorities should set about rooting out the discontent.

BHARAT MITRA,
Sept. 11th, 1909.

54. The Bharat Mitra [Calcutta] of the 11th September extols the Government for its announcement to hold a Commission of expert Medical officers on the 11th August next at Simla for an enquiry into the causes of malaria prevailing in the country and says that it is the duty not merely of Government but of all the educated Indians of the various districts to join hands with the villagers and make themselves ready to enquire into the causes of the disease and devise preventive measures. The formation of an association of educated young men for the treatment of the villagers suffering from the disease would do immense good to the people.

III.—LEGISLATION.

SAMAY,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

55. Referring to the acquittal by the High Court of the accused in the Assam Valley murder case, who had been sentenced to death by the Sessions Judge, the Samay [Calcutta] of the 10th September writes:—

The acquittal shows the unreliable nature of the evidence on the strength of which the Sessions Judge was about to send two innocent men to the gallows. Such failures of justice often take place owing to judges placing reliance upon the evidence of approvers who have been tortured and tutored by the Police. It is high time that the law regarding confessions was amended. It is not an uncommon thing for the Police to set up an approver whom they have first brutally tortured and thus compelled him to say anything they like. If the persons against whom such evidence is put forward, happen to be too poor to engage pleaders to defend them, they are convicted on the strength of the statement of the approver, although for all that one may know they may be totally innocent. The larger the number of convictions a police officer can manage to secure the better are his chances for promotion. So he shrinks from nothing however mean or sinful in order to get accused persons convicted. This is, however, against the principles of British law, though these principles are being often violated by the police. The recent Ferozepur Murder case, the Narayangarh Train Wrecking case, the Barrah Dacoity case, the Midnapore Bomb case, the Nattore Mail Robbery case, etc., all show how ready the police are to get innocent persons punished. The present law of confessions is a very handy weapon in the hands of the police, and we humbly suggest that the Law Member of the Imperial Council should see his way to amend it very soon.

IV.—NATIVE STATES.

56. The Hitvarta [Calcutta] of the 9th September congratulates the Diwan of the Patiala State for his following the example of Baroda, Mysore and Travancore States in making Primary Education free, and regrets that Government should be evading its responsibility in the matter under the pretext of want of funds while providing money for military expenses.

HITVARTA,
Sept. 9th, 1909.

57. In noticing that the Maharaja Scindhia has recently circulated a notice prohibiting his subjects to subscribe, to the Kal, Hindu Panch, Kesri, etc., on pain of being punished, the Bihar Bandhu [Bankipur] of the 11th September characterises His Highness's conduct as an example of what it calls "double loyalty" to Government.

BIHAR BANDHU,
Sept. 11th, 1909.

58. The Hindi Bangavasi [Calcutta] of the 13th September requests His Highness the Maharaja of Baroda to introduce Hindi as a language of the court in his State. This will set at rest the long-standing conflict between the Gujrati and Marhathi; besides Hindi will get a protector like other languages, for it has none at present.

HINDI BANGAVASI,
Sept. 13th, 1909.

VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.

59. The Daily Hitavadi [Calcutta] of the 7th September has the following under the heading "What do you want?"

DAILY HITAVADI,
Sept. 7th, 1909.

"What do you want?"

* A race of pigmy saints in Hindu mythology.

† A familiar name for elderly women in Bengal.

‡ Refers to the break-up of sage Daksha's sacrifice by ghosts at the bidding of Siva.

Can you say what you want?—you, who pass by the name of Extremists, who possess the name of Nationalists—(you) the swarm of Balakhilya* politicians, what you want? Do you want always to set people by the ears like aunt Padi,† who goes about quarrelling with her neighbours—do you want always to set people by the ears?—always to spoil other people's game (lit., always to pour ashes on other people's rice)—always to dance like ghosts at the breaking up of Daksha's‡ sacrifice? We ask what you want.

It is well to premise that our views do not accord with those of very many of the Moderates. On the other hand, we cannot be at one (with you) in the unrestrained childish pranks of you Extremists. We are afraid to be in contact with you. And yet we criticise the views of both parties according to our intelligence, and do not forget to give fearless expression to our own views either. We said two or three days ago that, if a combined Congress of all parties was to meet, preparations (to that end) must be made from now, and that these preparations should be made publicly. But considering now that you are breaking away from parties into "flocks," one cannot suppose that any self-respecting gentleman can act in association with you. Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjee, when he could not work in unison with the Calcutta British Indian Association, founded the Indian Association; Mr. Sisir Kumar also started the Indian League—both, falling away from the Zamindars' Association, created new parties. If one is a man, this is what one has to do—this is the path one has to travel.

Whereas if one is to be like a dog-in-the-manger (lit., like the bull belonging to the god Vaidya Nath which will not plough the ground itself, and which will gore to death others if it sees them do that work), one has to act as you are now acting, that is to say, one has always to try to spoil the sacrifice. Is that good?

The Moderates have a creed—a method of work. What have you? Mr. S. N. Banerjee, worshipped of the country, is the inaugurator of the swadeshi-boycott. He holds that the swadeshi boycott should be preached within the confines of the law, in obedience to British rule, and the national welfare is certain. The wise and experienced Dadabhai Naoroji has created the longing for swaraj—if the Indian administrative system is framed on the lines of the administrative system of the English Colonies, the conquered hearts of Indians will to a large extent be expanded. So it is the duty of everybody to dedicate himself to the attainment of this swaraj. We understand that there are these two sorts of opinion among the Moderates. Those who obey these are Moderates, and are under guidance of the Moderate leaders. What are your views? The late Brahmabandhav had some views, some method of work—you did not support them. Naturally therefore one has to ask what are your views. We see that you worry yourselves merely in changing the language of the written resolutions of the Moderates, only in explaining and reversing the orders of words like to, at, in the, etc. Have you ever brought before the people of the country a new idea, a new path, a new vow, a new endeavour? You have not, and it is because you cannot, that one feels inclined to remark that it is the unrestrained dance of demons breaking up Daksha's sacrifice, it is not rendering service to the country.

If oil and water are not to mix, if it is impossible for you to work with the Moderates in unison, why you do not form a distinct party? Form a new Congress, a new Conference; dedicate yourselves to cultivating politics on new lines. But the people of the country will no longer obey you, if in forming your own party you simply bring others to ruin, and break up Congress and Conferences. We have indeed lost everything, but we have not lost courtesy, have not forgotten how to honour old and experienced men. It is this courtesy which constitutes a thing for us to glory at. But the account of the first day's Hooghly Provincial Conference has left us speechless in indignation, grief, amazement and vexation. Mr. Baikuntha Nath Sen is a man honoured of the country, before whom we have all of us to stand with bowed heads. It passes us to conceive how with this experienced and wise Baikuntha Babu occupying the Presidential chair, the boys could betray such fickleness and forwardness. The difference between the gentleman and the ill-mannered lies in courtesy. If the sons of gentlemen come to lose that courtesy, we do not know in what terms to upbraid them. Considering the lack of restraint and forwardness which we have received reports of having been displayed at the Hooghly Conference Hall and in the meetings of the Subjects Committee, we feel inclined to say that there is no safety for the Congress and the Conference, unless they can keep themselves aloof from such a forward, loose-tongued, arrogant, discourteous and unruly body of men. We never before heard of such good morals as lead to forwardness, to the dishonour of the honourable, to the crossing of the bounds of decency as a consequence of a difference of opinions. We hear that Srijit Aravinda Ghose has come to be the leader of this flock. There is no doubt that, as the result of such leadership, his dignity will be impaired. He is wise, intelligent and high-minded; he is an object of affection and glory to us, is our hope. He is devoted to the country, self-restrained, self-abnegating, a man of honest mind. We cannot command language adequate to praise him. But although he may be an object of respect and glory to us, we are entitled to censure him for the improper move he is about to make. Division into parties does not mean indulgence in abusive language, or making unseemly exhibitions. It is a matter for rejoicing that you have come to be the leader of a party, but in no country have we ever seen it to be a human practice for a leader of a party, merely because he is such, to scratch and bite the other party. Why should Aravinda pursue such a policy? Do not break up anybody's ready-made thing, if you can make something new yourself. Our country is immense, we are a nation of eternal existence, there is no telling how much sin inheres in our degradation and subjection. Cast your eyes in those directions, try to remove those sins—we also shall in that case be your associates. But if one sees you as leader of such a party as scratches and bites, people will cry shame on you Aravinda, even on you. Perhaps the echoes of those cries of shame are already reaching our ears. You Aravinda were in England since your birth, and are aware of all the Englishman's good points and bad. But you are not in touch with our country, race and religion. If you were, you would not have led an arrogant band. This is a land where even an ocean of knowledge like Sankaracharya had to put up with opposition, where even the stream of Chaitanya and Nityananda's devotion, comparable to the Ganges and Jamuna, was checked. It is a land where one has to be patient, where degrees of patience determine divinity, humanity and brutality. The most patient—he who when struck by a broken circular piece of an earthen * Alludes to the story of Nitai, a follower and coadjutor of Chaitanya, who when struck by a ruffian named Jagai exhorted him to take the name of Hari (God).

pot, preaches the name of Hari among the people of the country—* it is such men only who are (looked upon as) gods in this country. On the other hand, if only one is impatient, one has to take the seat of the beast, of the ape, in polite society in this country. Had you known this country and its people, you would not lead such an impatient party. We have to say so much, only because you do not know us, have not made our acquaintance.

60. The Nayak [Calcutta] of the 8th September writes thus of the Hooghly Conference :—

The Hooghly Conference.

The first day's sitting saw one small interruption on the occasion of Mr. Peary Lall Ghosh's speech, but it was not one worth reckoning, considering the difference now existing between the two present political parties in the country. As it is, European "bulls" like the Statesman and the Englishman are unhappy and profess to be amazed at seeing Surendra Babu and Aravinda Babu working at the same platform. But then what is to our good is held to be injurious by these papers, and what gives us joy causes them pain. They want to create a schism and keep the national power in Bengal down. But this sort of trickery every one now sees through, and all parties recognise that in combined work lies the only hope of the future progress of the land.

An examination of the resolutions discloses the wholesale change which has come over the spirit of political agitation in this country in the last two or three years as the result of the teachings of the Extremists. The present-day resolutions have no longer the old form of wailing and appeal. A new spirit of self-reliance is apparent. Thus Moderates as a matter of undisputed fact have come gradually, if unknowingly, to conform to Extremist principles. Indeed given patience, perseverance and restraint, ere long, Extremist principles will come to influence all India. This is certainly a matter for joy to Extremists and to their leader. Mr. Aravinda Ghose, but unhappily Mr. Ghose's followers behave in a way which is seriously displeasing the public. Truly or falsely, an impression is coming to prevail among the latter, that certain Extremists are getting quite out of hand, are lacking in respect to the leaders, in discipline to their superiors, in the capacity for work, that they are in fact only filled with a quarrelsome, arrogant, undisciplined, and destructive spirit. If this accusation is true, it will do serious mischief to the Extremist cause. We appeal to Mr. Ghose therefore to restrain his followers and assert his authority as leader. It will be a matter of no common regret if the new force awakening in the nation capable of so much good is nipped in the bud, because of the sins of irresponsible, sensation-loving, undisciplined youths.

61. The Dharma [Calcutta] of the 9th September writes :—

The Hooghly Provincial Conference.

In the interval (between the publication of our last issue and this), the sittings of the Provincial Conference have begun at Hooghly, and it is unnecessary to express any opinions about the subjects discussed by the Conference until the results thereof are known for certain. This year is the meeting-point of the past and the future. Upon the results of the labours of the Conference depends the future of Bengal to a large extent. Since the NAYAK.

Sept. 8th, 1909.

DHARMA,
Sept. 9th, 1909.

inauguration of a strongly repressive policy, the country has come to be quiet. The newly-awakened force and courage of the Bengali race came to hide themselves in the hearts of the young men, and at the advice of timid men the people of the country were about to have their recollection perverted and intelligence lost. Far from opposing the repressive policy lawfully but courageously, and thereby rendering it ineffective, inactivity and silence were proclaimed as the best course out of fear and a wisdom devoid of political sense. That has made the repressive policy successful, and the officials also have come to understand that they have discovered an unfailing weapon. This inactivity and silence were leaving the minds of the people of the country dejected and discouraged—the ultimate fate of national education is coming to be most lamentable; the force of boycott having waned, the purchase and sale of bilati merchandise are rapidly going up—all the effort and zeal of the past five years are coming to lose force and to be vain. With courage in their hearts, the leaders are incapable of discharging the functions of true leadership; they do not want to cast away the spell of the Convention creed and the constitutional reforms; they are professedly in favour of a real national Congress; practically they are making no preparations for its resurrection; they are afraid to accept the reforms; and yet their hearts weep at the prospect of rejecting it. Under these circumstances, the future of Bengal will be dark, unless those who are ready to dedicate their whole lives to the country, who do not know what fear is, who know and obey none save God and mother Bengal, come forward. If we can save the reputation of the country and India's future hopes at the Provincial Conference, the path will be cleared out considerably. We are waiting for that. Otherwise, clearing out our paths ourselves, we shall have to preserve the life of the country, which is stricken with fear and agitated by a repressive policy.

MIHIR-O-SUDHAKAR.
Sept. 10th, 1909.

62. Referring to the presidential speech delivered at the Provincial Conference at Hooghly, the Mihir-o-Sudhakar [Calcutta] of the 10th September says:—

Criticism of the Presidential address delivered in the Hooghly Provincial Conference. It was useless for the President to invite the Muhammadans for co-operation and advice. The paper refuses to believe that the unrest and the recent murders were due to administrative faults. It is evident from a careful perusal of the President's speech that the object of the Conference is not to impartially serve the good of all the communities; but only to ameliorate the condition of individual races. For many reasons the paper can't accept the Congress as "National." As regards the partition of Bengal, the paper says that it is not true to say that it was effected in direct opposition to the opinion of the entire population, as the Muhammadan section supported it. The President says that the object of the swadeshi and boycott agitation was not to create race-hatred and offer resistance to the Government. The paper denies the truth of this, and says that the movement began in a vindictive spirit as is evident from the unpleasant occurrences which have happened subsequent to its inauguration. The President is to a certain extent right in saying that the poor have been much benefited by the acceptance of swadeshi. It may be, as the President says, that the Police Reform will be acceptable if the separation of judicial and executive functions is effected, but such separation is not desirable in the present state of the country. The paper thinks it unnecessary to pass any opinion on the deference shown to public opinion by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor in postponing the Police Bill. The President says that the Government, relying mainly on Police reports deported as many as nine respectable men. Had it been so, Lord Morley would have released these men. However, it is a serious charge against the Government. The President thinks it advisable to do away with Regulation III of 1818. The paper does not like to see the Government deprived of a weapon by the abolition of this Regulation. The enforcement of the Regulation was well called for by recent occurrence.

BHARAT MITRA,
Sept. 11th, 1909.

63. In noticing the resolutions passed by the Bengal Provincial Conference the Bharat Mitra [Calcutta] of the 11th September observes:—

The success achieved by the Bengalis in carrying out the proceedings of the Bengal Provincial Conference, this year, in spite of radical differences in political views, is an object-lesson to all parties holding different creeds. The readers will be glad to see in its proper place how Mr. Arabinda Ghosh has by modifying his own views and prevailing upon his party to do the same, been able to set an example of working in harmony with an adverse party. The Bengalis have not only gained success in the aims of the Provincial Conference by reconciling their conflicting views, but they have gone even so far as to unite and make a worthy attempt to revive the National Congress. The reconciliation of the disunited Bengalis has sorely vexed the Anglo-Indian papers. Not to speak of the Englishman and the Statesman, even the level headed Capital has been vexed at the reconciliation of Messrs. Arabinda Ghose and Surendra Nath Banerji and led to exclaim with pain that this ought never to have come to pass. Of course the unexpected has happened and will happen in succession. The impossible having become possible will make their breast feel the burning pain of castigation. Gentlemen! Mark that there has been infused a new life in India, which will manifest itself in everything. Weep, cry or be restless, you will never be able to stop the inevitable.

The Bengal Provincial Conference.

64. The Bharat Mitra [Calcutta] of the 11th September continues the proceedings of the last Bengal Provincial Conference.

BHARAT MITRA,
Sept. 11th, 1909.

65. The Nayak [Calcutta] of the 10th September condemns Mr. Arabinda Ghosh for having, at a College Square swadeshi meeting the other day permitted a number of students and young men of whom he is the acknowledged leader all over India, to make an unseemly interruption of an aged speaker whose language was not spirited enough for their taste. The paper appeals to Mr. Ghosh not to lead these young men, the future hopes of their country, to courses of indiscipline and unrestraint. Far better that they should be urged to become bideshi outright than come under the spell of a new inharmonious mixture of swadeshi and bideshi.

Mr. Arabinda Ghosh condemned.

NAYAK,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

66. The Daily Hitavadi [Calcutta] of the 8th September writes:—

Union of Moderates and Extremists.

We fail to see what makes the Anglo-Indian papers, as for example the Statesman and the Englishman, afraid of the union between Moderates and Extremists. Perhaps they think that such a thing will do them some harm. Who knows but that in that injury to them, there may be some good for us. But then matters relating to the Congress or the Moderates and the Extremists are matters which are solely our own and we do not think it is any business of the Anglo-Indian press to speak of them.

DAILY HITAVADI,
Sept. 8th, 1909.

Anglo-Indian journalists have come out to this country to earn a living. Their concern with this country is only for a few years. So why do they pester us with so many queries? Well, if they must have an answer, let us tell them that union between Moderates and Extremists is injurious to the policy by which India is now being governed. The golden apple of the Reform Scheme has proved a source of endless mischief by sowing the seeds of discord among the different classes of the Indian population. This mischief is not likely to be undone soon—perhaps it will not be undone so long as the British rule lasts. Our contemporaries of the Statesman and the Englishman are afraid lest the union of Moderates and Extremists should tend to weld the two parties into a mighty power, and that is why, like the demoness Putana who tried to kill the infant Krishna under the pretence of suckling him at her breasts, these Anglo-Indian papers are trying to destroy the Moderates while seeming to be friendly to them.

As for us, we are neither Moderates nor Extremists. We are what may be called Nationalists. We never lose sight of the fact that we are a people subject to the English, and that we are bound to obey the laws and regulations which the English make. We are always ready to serve our country as far as possible within the boundary lines of these laws and regulations. We know also that this right of free speech and writing is a thing which we have got by imitating the English. So we are in every way dependent on the English Government, and cannot boycott it as Arabinda Babu suggests, and indeed it is never possible for us to do so. We know this also, that we shall never willingly cut through the boundary line of laws and regulations because we can always put up with the severe pangs of subjection. Though a subjugated people lying under the feet of others, we pride ourselves on our achievement, and we are completely different from the English as regards nationality, religion and manliness. We must keep our individuality intact, as it is by that means alone that even the wealth of the whole world will come into our hands.

We do not recognise the separate existence of Moderates or Extremists. We know them all as our brethren. What we ask our countrymen to do is to become men properly so-called. The illusion of English education often leads both the Moderates and the Extremists to errors. We boldly point out the errors, and thus incur the displeasure of both the parties. To all of them we say. Be men first, and then be the members of a nation. We know that their union will lead to immense good, and hence we ask the Moderates to give up their proud attitude, and the Extremists to forsake their mischievous propensities. But we implore the Moderates to beware of the seemingly affectionate overtures of the Anglo-Indian Press.

HITAVARTA,
Sept. 9th, 1909.

67. The members of the Reception Committee of the Lahore Conference, says the Hitavarta [Calcutta] of the 9th September, have been persuading the artless people of other districts to sign the creed and join their party under threat that they would otherwise be considered Extremists and Seditionists. Many people have washed off their extremism by prostrating themselves before the idol of creed. An arrangement has thus been made to make an exhibition of the cowards of the Punjab at the Conference.

The same paper in an other article says that there is another proceeding for which the Moderate papers have always taken the Government to task. Up to this time the officials have been bringing pressure to bear on the Rajas, Maharajas and the zamindars for various purposes, and for this the Government has been invariably found fault with by the Moderate papers. But now pressure is being brought to bear on the Rajas and the zamindars of the Province, through the Commissioners, Collectors, etc., to make them render assistance to the assembly of the cowards. The Punjabi has, by giving an account of the proceedings of the Exhibition Committee, described the ways in which the Rajas, etc., are subjected to unlawful treatment. The little assistance offered by a few of the people has not been accepted as sufficient. A few of the Rajas, even after having given assistance, have been required to offer musical instruments, etc. Poor fellows! willy nilly they must carry out the orders.

HITAVADI,
Sept. 11th, 1909.

68. In referring to Mr. Dadabhai Naoroji's recent declaration of opinion in favour of a Congress—sitting in London, the Daily Hitavadi [Calcutta] of 11th September writes that there is something to be gained from such a sitting. The English public ought to be told, that though now the Indians as a race are a disorganized mass without any strong consciousness of the degradation of their condition, they are nevertheless coming to have their eyes opened; and if they learn unity, may overthrow England's dominion in India. It is therefore to her interest to treat them now with consideration and to accede to their requests. Moreover England's agents in this country no longer command the respect of the Indian population as their predecessors did. This is an additional reason for her to treat her Indian subjects so that she might win their hearts. The fact is so long as Indians must submit to English rule, things will be all the easier for them for some little compromise and care on their part. In this sense a Congress in England is to be advocated, but at the same time the Indian people must be taught that they are not worms or insects, but men whose will force is unconquerable; that it is their support which upholds the Government, and that their power of work constitutes a great asset for the promotion or degradation of the race, and that once their force is roused, the ruling authority will come to be yielding.

SANJIVANI,
Sept. 9th, 1909.

69. The following is a full translation of what a correspondent writes to the Sanjivani [Calcutta] of the 9th September, under the heading "European blow with the fist versus the Swadeshi slap:—" Last Monday, at night, Srijuts J. Chowdhury and A. Chowdhury were returning to Calcutta from the Hooghly Provincial Conference in a first class reserved carriage with Maharaj Sir Prodyot Kumar Tagore, Kt. When the train reached Chander-nagore, a party of white football-players attempted to forcibly enter the Maharaja's compartment. It is heard that there were two Highland soldiers in the party. Srijut J. Chowdhury stepped forward and prevented the white-men from entering. For this they abused him, and one of them suddenly rained blows upon him. Mr. Chowdhury is not a very "submissive boy;" he at once returned the blow, and inflicted a pure swadeshi slap on the cheek of the white "bull." Then Mr. J. Chowdhury checked his attack with a stick uplifted. In the meantime Dr. U. D. Banerjee caught the whiteman who had abused him by calling him suwar pig by the throat and pressed it with so much force as to deprive him of his power to beg for his life. Dr. Banerjee then said to him: "Suwar ka lerka, don't you abuse now." On the other side another white man caught hold of Mr. J. Chowdhury's chadar (which was) around his neck and pulled it; then Mr. A. Chowdhury began to pull the chadar catching the other side. Many Bengalis were returning from the Hooghly Conference by that train. Seeing this affair they alighted from the train and in an instant surrounded the white men, in order to avenge the wrong done to the leaders of the country. The two Chowdhurys pacified them all. The other white men then begged pardon. We have come to know that yesterday some of these white men went to the High Court and begged Mr. A. Chowdhury's pardon with tears flowing.

70. The Daily Hitavadi [Calcutta] of the 14th September writes thus in reference to the statement that bilati piece-goods are again finding an extensive sale in the two Bengals:—

Extended sale of bilati piece-goods among Bengalis.

DAILY HITAVADI.
Sept. 14th, 1909.

The briskness of the sale is explained partly by the fact that goods are being supplied on credit to an immense extent, and that is a temptation which the Bengali can hardly get over. And further matters have been complicated by the application of force. Let the ruling authority stand rigidly aloof from this trade rivalry, and then we shall see to what extent bilati piece-goods sell. As we told the Englishman, if the Government does not take sides, we can easily beat the Englishman hollow in a game of mutual boycott. As it is, we hear that in Eastern Bengal, if people sell deshi piece-goods, they are arrested by the Police and molested by the darogas. And further that sales of bilati cloth are being distributed among different arats and shops all over the country on the lines of making advances (dadán). Are not these sufficient to encourage the sale of bilati piece-goods? And are these statements false? If so, it is necessary that Government should contradict them. Else we shall have to reveal all the secrets to our readers.

71. The Bir Bharat [Calcutta] of the 12th September has a swadeshi song under the signature of Bhura Mal (Mushraf) from which the following extracts are taken:—

BIR BHARAT,
Sept. 12th, 1909.

Swadeshi song.

The arts, industries of the country,
which the bideshi has destroyed,
Let us the knowledge of the country revive;
be the reimprovement, be the re improvement.
Forsaking the bideshi ways, and adorning the swadeshi,
Let us save the country;
be there improvement, be there improvement.
May our heart's desire be fulfilled;
this is our prayer to God.
May we serve our country;
be there improvement, be there improvement.

72. The Ekata [Calcutta] of the 13th September says that Lord Morley's reforms are as unsubstantial as any so-called reforms could be, and have almost made the

EKATA,
Sept. 13th, 1909.

The real need of India. Indians forget their swadeshi agitation. As a matter of fact, the Indians have somewhat lost their determination to reach their goal in their swadeshi enterprise.

The bread problem is the problem of problems. If that problem could be solved, it would not matter if the Indians were to remain subject to foreigners for ever. The industrial regeneration of the country must be achieved, otherwise everything will be lost. "We do not wish to compete with the English in the matter of Indian administration; but we desire to compete with them in commercial matters," concludes the writer.

BIHAR BANDHU,
Sept. 11th, 1909.

73. One Paras Nath Tripathi, in the course of an article on "Female Education," contributed to the Bihar Bandhu [Bankipore] of the 11th September observes:—

Crying for swaraj a folly.
Dear, readers! Whichever side we turn our eyes to-day, we see the people crying—Swaraj! Swaraj! and saying that if the British Government would hand over its raj to them, they would certainly pass a life of contentment. But, this is due to their shere ignorance and folly.

DARUS SULTANAT,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

74. It is quite a regret to find, says the Darus Sultanat [Calcutta] of the 10th September, that some of the unworthy and short-sighted newspapers have been trying to kindle the fire of prejudice among the Hindus and the Musalmans. Some prejudice, whether confined to a race or nation, may be legitimate if kept within certain bounds, but those are simply mistaken who regard prejudice as a part of their religion. It is to be highly deplored that the Hindu papers have adopted a hostile attitude towards the Muhammadans since the latter have pressed forward their claims for a separate election. It was on certain social and political considerations that the Musalmans made a demand for a separate election; it had nothing of racial prejudice in it, calculated to add to the difference between the two sections. As the attitude of the Hindu papers is questionable, so one or two short-sighted Moslem papers cannot escape the blame of having blasphemed the Hindus. Every one has a natural claim to safeguard his just rights. If there is any unlawful attack (on those rights) either party can offer a calm and courteous reply, but it need not create any hot blood among them.

It may be true that no other people are more loyal to Government than the Musalmans, but it does not follow from it that all the non-Moslem Indians are rebellious. Every community has in it good and bad men, with varying numbers, and no one can be called loyal merely on account of his belonging to a particular community.

It was thought that spread of education in India would diminish the force of inordinate prejudice, but, unfortunately for India, which is more sensitive to evil than to good, we find that prejudice is gaining ground among the enlightened men; and this will ere long prove dangerous to educational and industrial progress of the country.

Our aim here is to dwell upon the fact that the friendly relation which once existed between the Hindus and the Musalmans in India is not yet extinct. Much progress would result if the Indian patriots would try to work in unison on educational, industrial and social questions. As to the political questions it is not necessary that there should be a unity of thought. It is possible that the Musalmans may not favour the political views of the Hindus, and vice versa; but this difference in political opinions should be regulated after the manner of the Members of the British Parliament who, though disagreeing in their views, have the reputation of forming one body.

KARMAYOGIN,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

75. A writer in the Karmayogin [Uttarpara] of the 10th September says:—

A lathial Regiment for renga.
There should be, at least as an experimental measure, a small regiment in Bengal composed of men skilled in lathi-play. It is not just to blame the English for the disappearance of the art of lathi-play in Bengal. In the older times Kayastha zamindars used to serve in the army and encourage martial skill. The last Bengali to try to revive lathi-play was that man of extraordinary foresight, the late Jaykrishna Mukherjee, of Uttarpara. The whole world mocks us Bengalis as cowards, and we calmly submit to that. But it is high time that a small regiment of lathials was raised in Bengal. I do not, of course, mean to add to the complexity of the present situation, when unrest is so widespread in the land. I am sure a regiment like this will in time act as a sort of check against the symptoms of unrest. Our rulers are now ready to redress our grievances, and I think that they will now admit Bengalis into the Military service. Now is the best opportunity for us to try to obtain this right which has been refused us so long.

HITVARTA,
Sept. 9th, 1909.

76. The lovers of National education, says the Hitvarta [Calcutta] of the 9th September, will be glad to receive the news that the Managing Committee of the Calcutta National Hindi in National institutions.

College has made arrangements to impart instruction in Hindi also, for hitherto they had felt its want an obstruction to sending their children to that institution such lovers of national education whose vernacular is Hindi.

77. After describing the ancient system of absolute rule with the present constitutional system, the Bharat Bandhu [Calcutta] of the 9th September considers the former to be superior to the latter.

Absolute rule approved.

78. The Dharma [Calcutta] of the 9th September writes :—

Renunciation.

* The quality of excellence.
† The quality of passion or activity.
‡ The quality of ignorance or inactivity.

Considering the times and conditions on which we are now fallen, our main duty should be to revive the qualities of Sattva* and Rajas† or in other words—knowledge and impulses to action, and giving up the Tamas‡ qualities revive the moral and spiritual force of the nation in the service of the country and the world. In the womb of this worn-out and lean race, stricken down by the Tamas qualities and narrowed by selfishness, an Aryan race, liberal, wise and strong, will have to be re-created. It is to carry out this purpose that so many strong creatures are being born in Bengal endowed with the power of Yoga. If these men, attracted by the captivating power of renunciation, renounce their proper duty and the work which God has given them to do, then righteousness will be destroyed, as will be the race also. Let young men recollect that the Brahmacharya Asram (the celibate life) is a period fixed for purposes of training and the evolution of character. After this period, the house-holder's life is appointed. It will not be reprehensible to practice the life of the hermit and the exile, when, having preserved the family honour and contributed to the building-up of the future Aryan race, we shall have paid off our debt to our forefathers, when by good work and the husbanding of wealth, we shall have paid off our debt to society and when by distributing knowledge, charity, love and power we shall have discharged our obligation to the world, when by doing liberal and great deeds for the good of Mother India we shall have pleased the World—Mother.

A man who has attained wisdom, coming under the influence of a force, devotes his body, mind and intelligence to the divinely appointed work without permitting desire to intervene as an aid or as an obstacle. If even the terrible murder of Kurukshetra was approved by God, and if even such a thing happens through adherence to one's duty, no sin accrues to the creature who has attained wisdom, who is without desire, and who acts in a spirit of aloofness. But this is a state of knowledge and ideal issue which few can attain to. As for the ordinary man he should come to hold that God is the worker of the instrument and he the instrument—for him it is ordained that in that consciousness he should call on God and discharge his duty.

79. The Karmayogin [Uttarpara] of the 10th September has the following in an article under the heading: "The Kali era and the incarnation of Kalki":—

The Kali era.

Ever since the day on which Lord Sri Krishna departed from the world, the Kali Yuga has attacked the world and the force of its attack has either driven out the leading preceptors of the Aryan race or made them acknowledge its supremacy and do whatever it bids them. Kali Yuga establishes its sway in the world by perverting the sense of man. No one can say how long the Kali Yuga will reign in the world, but this much is certain that as soon as the light of knowledge and science appear, Kali will vanish immediately. But Brahmins, what is the good of your knowing how long Kali Yuga is going to stay? Kali has perverted your Brahminic instincts and is polluting the society, the religion and customs. But as soon as your Brahminic powers are aroused, Kali will disappear like mist before sunrise. Intelligence is like an all-powerful goddess present in all created beings. Let boys, youths and old men all bow to that goddess and say :—

"Awake in my heart and dispel my shame of servitude."

The thoughts of this deliverance are being showered upon the world like nectar and the entire human race has taken them up. Man has now understood that independence must be preserved, that self-respect must be maintained, that the human race must be saved from oppression, and that caste,

BHARAT BANDHU,
Sept. 9th, 1909.

DHARMA,
Sept. 9th, 1909.

KARMAYOGIN,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

religion and intelligence must be freed from the subjugation of others. It is not only that oppression ought to be avenged, but that the oppressor ought to be put down also. Neither self-interest nor the interest of others can be maintained unless oppression can be checked. What destroys religion must have to be destroyed. (Here follows a Sanskrit quotation which may be translated as below):—

“How are the weak to live in an evil day?”

The West has got some idea of this truth, and has slowly lifted her head after cutting through the bonds of dependance. China and Japan have awoke along with her. The true Westerner has tasted of independence, but had scarcely swallowed it down than he fell down maimed like the demon Rahu* when he had his head cut off. Hence the mantra of man's deliverance cannot be clearly sounded by his (the Westerner's) mutilated throat. Greedy for the nectar, the Westerner has had its tongue split through by the blades of the Kusa grass against which it was rubbed. [The allusion is to the Hindu legend which says that the snake's forked tongue is due to its being split by the sharp blades of the Kusa grass, which it licked in the hope of obtaining from it the nectar which the gods had churned out of the great ocean.] Hence O erring minds; do not put any faith in him. O Brahmin youth, who labour under self-forgetfulness, you will not get in the light of that learning and science, which shines with the intoxication of wealth and power, that peace and happiness which you run after. It is not, in fact, good for you to imagine the west to be free, and allow yourself to be led away by its (i.e., of the West) ideas of liberty and fraternity. Those who want to make themselves free from danger in the world by putting down the other nations of the world, who think themselves gratified by proudly unfurling the flag of righteousness and action in the world, after establishing their own selves upon explosives, who want to pass for high class Brahmins, although engaged in the improvement of arts and sciences—things which befit only Sudras—what can you, the son of a good Brahmin, learn from such men? What will you learn from that semi-civilised and semi-babbarious non-Aryan, whose intelligence has been perverted by the Kali Yuga, and who eats uncooked flesh? Do not think them to be free or independent, wise or learned. They have been subjugated by Kali. The entire western world has accepted Kali's servitude, and is helping it in its work of destruction. They (i.e., the Western nations) cannot see that Kali has swallowed them up. They rather consider themselves to be learned men. [Here follows a verse from the Kathopanishat which may be rendered:—] They are in the midst of avidya (ignorance), they consider themselves to be wise and learned—they are moving about like blind men led by blind men.

* The demon Rahu had swallowed nectar, but immediately afterwards his head was cut down, and it is the bodiless head which is the only thing which remains of him.

Being pronounced in its severed throat with a perverted and dreadful sound, the mantra of independence is striking terror into the heart of entire mankind.

Go on developing your Bhrahminic powers. Give up the ignorance, born of the intoxication of arrogance and pride and befitting only Sudras, and take to a life of spiritual fire which destroys Kali. Have recourse again to that spiritual instinct by virtue of which you enlightened the world with the divine truth. Your heroism makes the earth tremble; your roaring astounds the sun, the moon and the stars; at a sign from you the course of the wheel of Time is checked. Are you not the son of such a Brahmin—why then are you gloomy, why are you sad?

Finding that his motherland, which was within the clutches of Kali, was sinking in the ocean of cataclysm along with the Vedas and Vedanta, the Brahmin youth, who was standing on the golden shores, began to soliloquise:—

“Arouse yourself, O drooping heart. You shall have to swim in the waters of yonder ocean at the time of the cataclysm. Do not be afraid of its huge waves or be disheartened thereby. Be resolute!”

Reader, you will perhaps think me naturally to be mad. But leave the land you are accustomed to walk upon, and come once on these shores of gold. You will see here the mountainous waves of the ocean of time; you will find that your motherland, which is in the clutches of Kali, is disappearing under the limitless bottoms of the ocean at this time of cataclysm. The golden image of your motherland is being washed far, far away by the surging waves of the ocean, and time-limbed Kali is toying with it.

Ah, the sight is too much for me. How can I make friends with this wicked person or worship him as the sovereign of my heart? But, poor as I am, and impossible as it may seem for me to enter into rivalry with him, I, this weak Brahmin, drive away from my heart this Kali who destroys Brahmins and cows. If I be too weak to fight with him alone, I shall assume a thousand forms. If I do not succeed in vanquishing him in this birth, I shall be born a thousand times over again, but drive him away I must.

80. Adverting to the Janmashtami Holiday, the Hitvarta [Calcutta] of the 9th September says that the celebration of the anniversary (6th September) of Sri Krishna's birth should find a prominent place in the national celebrations, so that the principal object of Sri Krishna's incarnation may be promulgated. In explaining what is duty, to Arjuno (in the battle-field of Kurukshetra), he distinctly told his disciple, who was wavering to engage in fight with his kith and kin:—"You should not hesitate seeing it to be a part of your duty. There is nothing more beneficial to a Kshetrya than a righteous war, which has come of itself with the gates of heaven wide open. O! the son of Pritha! it is only the fortunate Kshetryas that get such a war..... If killed, you may get the heaven. If victorious, you may enjoy the kingdom of this earth. Therefore O! son of Kunti! be up, determined to fight."

So long as the Hindus followed this counsel, they had not to suffer; but the way to their prosperity was blocked on the day that they forgot the spirit of it. All the Hindus, therefore, being followers of Sri Krishna, should follow his advice; for, even if they fail, they need not despair, but continue their course, bearing in mind—

"What is attempted is never lost, even if it is not brought to completion, and there is no transgression. A partial observance of this duty saves one from a great danger."

If a man dies doing his duty which remains unfinished, he will have the satisfaction that no one will find fault with him, as having given up his duty in order to escape death.

81. In a poem headed: "The Brahmin", the Karmayogin [Uttarpara] of the 10th September describes a Brahmin chanting prayers with half his body immersed in the waters of the Ganges. He finishes his prayers and reaches the bank.

He now looks up towards the sky and finds that castes, religion and everything, including the golden image of the presiding goddess of Bengal, are being washed away by the waves of eternity. He next sees in the distant horizon the shining image of Gayatri* sinking slowly amidst the lamentations of crores of people all over the world. The Brahmin sits down and engages himself in a deep meditation; and when he opens his eyes again, he sees that a gigantic form appears from under the blue curtain of the limitless sky, with a sword in hand and vomiting forth crores and crores of suns and moons. The dark veil of cloud which has so long been enveloping the universe is torn asunder, and the dwellers of Heaven and the earth sing Vedic hymns in chorus.

82. Contrasting the regard in which cows and calves were held in ancient times with the state of things now obtaining when, instead of being well-fed and looked after on Janmastami (the birthday of god Sri Krishna) they are made victims to the knives of those monsters in human shape—the butchers, the Sri Sanatan Dharm [Calcutta] of the 7th September calls India a really unfortunate country.

83. Referring to the attempted assault on Messrs. A. Chaudhuri and J. Chaudhuri at the Chandernagore Railway Station, the Howrah Hitaishi [Howrah] of the 11th September writes.—

The alleged attempted assault on Messrs. A. and J. Chaudhuri.

Some of our Anglo-Indian contemporaries have published garbled accounts of the incident. We ask these journals to tell those mean-minded whites, who think that they can insult respectable Indians with impunity, that they can do so no longer. If a few Bengalis had attempted to get into

HITVARTA,
Sept. 9th, 1909.

KARMAYOGIN,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

SRI SANATAN DHARM,
Sept. 7th, 1909.

HOWRAH HITAIISHI,
Sept. 11th, 1909.

a reserved compartment occupied by Europeans, the Anglo-Indian press would have described the attempt as a political crime, and loudly called upon the Government to take repressive measures for putting it down. We ask our Anglo-Indian contemporaries to take note of the admirable self-restraint which Messrs. A. Chaudhuri and J. Chaudhuri have showed on the present occasion, and also to bear in mind that no attempt has been made to fasten any blame on the entire European community.

BEATA,
Sept. 14th, 1909.

Unruly Highlanders at the Chinsura Railway Station.

84. The Ekata [Calcutta] of the 14th September narrates how some Highlanders were severely punished by some Indian youths for trying to force their way into a reserved railway compartment occupied by Maharaja Prodyot Kumar Tagore and Mr. A. Chaudhuri at the Chinsura station, and concludes with the remark: "As was the dog, so also was the club."

DAILY HITAVADI,
Sept. 14th, 1909.

Mr. O'Donnell and the deportations.

85. The Daily Hitavadi [Calcutta] of the 14th September, in referring to Mr. C. J. O'Donnell's recent letter to India on the deportations, quotes what the Morning Leader has said, endorsing Mr. O'Donnell's view that all measures of conciliation will fail of effect until the deportees are released.

MIHRI-O-SUDHAKAR,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

Matwalis and wakf property.

86. A correspondent of the Mihri-o-Sudhakar [Calcutta] of the 10th September objects to the practice of certain matwalis in charge of wakf property of selling or letting out the same on mukarali tenures to the Hindus, as a result of which the purpose for which the property was made wakf is gradually lost sight of, and the property itself is destroyed. Gazi Dargaha, which is situated on the bank of the Ganges in the Hooghly District, is a holy place for the Mahommedans, and is famous for its being the burial place of many Mahommedan saints. A fair takes place here annually, and Mahommedans from distant parts of the country assemble here to pay respects to the shrine. About 150 bighas of land surrounding the place are given as wakf, from the income of which the expenses of the Darga are met. Some years ago the Lieutenant-Governor and the Divisional Commissioner visited the place and sanctioned money for renovating the broken Musjid and Dargaha and preserving the sacred place. Now it is going to be destroyed in consequence of a quarrel between the local Hindus and Mahommedans. The former Matwali Golab Rahman Sahib and Babu Monmohan Ghosh are the promoters of the quarrel. It is necessary that the Government should investigate the matter.

HINDI BANGAVASI,
Sept. 13th, 1909.

General Botha declines a title.

87. Referring to General Botha's declining a title which the British Government wanted to confer on him, the Hindi Bangavasi [Calcutta] of the 13th September asks such of his countrymen to note this self-denial of the General as with wistful eyes look up to the Government like crows in a place of pilgrimage for getting some title.

NAYAK,
Sept. 6th, 1909.

The Alipore bomb-appeal case in the High Court.

88. The Nayak [Calcutta] of the 6th September contains the following:—
The Bomb case is now going on in full swing. The trial has not yet ended. But Mr. Norton is not spending too many words. It is well that he should not do so; for, there is a saying "A certain person (i.e., a fool) does well only so long as he says nothing."

Before he was convicted in the Bomb case, Ullaskar had been sent to jail for seven years. Considering how the case is being continually protracted, it would seem as if he will have to serve out his term of imprisonment before he is hanged. What chance, then, is there of the fulfilment of his desire to cheat the "Company" of the sentence of imprisonment by getting hanged?

DAILY HITAVADI,
Sept. 10th, 1909.

The European and Anglo-Indian Defence Association and House-rents in Calcutta.

89. The Daily Hitavadi [Calcutta] of the 10th September writes:—
The Anglo-Indian Defence Association has of late been complaining of the rise in house-rents in Calcutta and blaming the native landlords for this. A memorial has also been submitted to the Lieutenant Governor in this connection. But we may tell the Defence Association that the hardship due to increased rents is felt not only by Europeans, but by natives as well. Landlords have now to pay a much higher rate of taxes to the Municipality than they used to do before, and hence they cannot help raising the rents of their houses. If the Defence Association really mean business, they should get the Government to compel mufassal zamindars to give up coming to Calcutta, and living here in rented houses. These people have no earthly reason to reside in the city, and manage to raise house-rents by increasing the demand for houses.

The Anglo-Indian Defence Association also complains of the insanitary condition of Calcutta and asks that congested bustees should be dismantled, and wide roads laid out. But the Municipality, while it never grudges any amount of money for adding more and more to the beauty of the European quarters, seldom cares to look after the filthy and unhealthy condition of many localities in the northern part of the city which are inhabited by natives.

90. Considering that the proposal to send the recently-discovered Buddha relics out of India has raised such a strong protest all over the country, the Nayak [Calcutta] of the 9th September hopes that the Government, which can possibly have no interest in sending the relics abroad, will allow them to remain in India.

NAYAK,
Sept. 9th, 1909.

91. Referring to the return of Mr. Lynch as a Member of Parliament, the Dainik Chandrika [Calcutta] of the 13th September writes :—

DAINIK CHANDRIKA,
Sept. 13th, 1909.

Mr. Lynch has been returned a Member of Parliament, although only a few years ago he was convicted of high treason on account of having fought against his own country in the Boer War. But the same people who admit Mr. Lynch into the House of Commons, are eager to send Indian political offenders to damnation. These people think that if deportees such as Aswini Kumar and Krishna Kumar be admitted into the Legislative Councils, a veritable cataclysm will come upon the country. Men who are welcoming Mr. Lynch, who was sentenced to capital punishment, though he obtained a reprieve, are at the same time expressing joy at the deportation of certain Indians without trial, and Lord Morley will feel himself gratified if he can join in this mirth.

URIYA PAPERS.

92. The Uriya and Navasamvad [Balasore] of the 1st September regrets to state that the condition of the High English School at Balangir, the head-quarters of the Patna State, is not satisfactory. The school has a boarding house attached to it and also suitable quarters for the teachers. Still, for want of interest on the part of the authorities, the institution is not prospering. It is said that the Political Agent is inclined to reduce its status to a Middle English School. The attention of the Calcutta University authorities and of the Director of Public Instruction, Bengal, is drawn to the matter at once.

URIYA AND NAVASAMVAD,
Sept. 1st, 1909.

93. The Balasore Municipality having taken steps to realise arrear taxes of 1908-09, the Samvad Vahika [Balasore] of the 2nd September observes that, as the Municipal demand is barred by limitation, it is illegal on the part of the Municipality to realise the arrear rates by issue of warrants.

SAMVAD VAHIKA,
Sept. 2nd, 1909.

94. The Samvad Vahika [Balasore] of the 2nd September expresses gratitude on behalf of the public to His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal for sending back the Calcutta and Suburban Police (Amendment) Bill to the Select Committee for re-consideration in the light of the comments made by different public bodies in Bengal. This deference to public opinion has endeared His Honour's policy to the people of Bengal.

SAMVAD VAHIKA,
Sept. 2nd, 1909.

95. The Samvad Vahika [Balasore] of the 2nd September is glad to find that the Balasore Municipality has begun to repair the Port road and the Kutchery road, which were so long in a neglected condition. It is not known when the repairs of other roads will be effected. The writer is of opinion that the repairs of the culverts, whose crowns have been injured, should be taken up at once, for they may prove dangerous to the passers-by, if they are permitted to remain in a neglected condition.

SAMVAD VAHIKA,
Sept. 2nd, 1909.

SAMVAD VAHIKA,
Sept. 2nd, 1909.

Simultaneous Civil Service
Examination in India and England approved.

96. The Samvad Vahika [Balasore] of the 2nd September is agreeably surprised to learn that Sir Charles Elliott, the ex-Governor of Bengal, has made the suggestion that the Civil Service Examination should be held simultaneously in India and England every year. The Civil Service will not suffer, if the system of simultaneous examination is introduced. By this means undesirable Indian students may be excluded from entering the United kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

NILACHAL
SAMACHAR,
Sept. 3rd, 1909.

The question of disposing of the holy remains of Buddha found near Peshawar.

97. Referring to the transfer of the sacred relics of Buddha discovered by diligent excavation near Peshawar to some sacred place in the Kingdom of the Buddhists, the Nilachal Samachar [Puri] of the 3rd September observes that, as Buddha is respected as a god by the Hindus, his remains may be permitted to remain in some holy place in India. The Utkalbarta [Calcutta] of the 4th September holds a similar opinion, and suggests that the holy remains may be permitted to remain where they are, and a stupa erected thereon at the cost of the Hindus who look upon Buddha as a demi-god.

UTKALBARTA,
Sept. 4th, 1909

GARJATBASINI,
Sept. 4th, 1909.

The Talcher Brahmins on the path of social, educational and and religious reform.

98. The Garjatbasini [Talcher] of the 4th September gives the proceedings of a meeting of the Brahmins in Talcher under the presidency of Pandit Padmanabha Dikshit in which it was resolved that the marriage expenses should be cut down in various ways, that the marriageable age of the Brahmin girls should be raised, that the Brahmin boys should be compelled to read and write and that many other social abuses should be reformed. It is said that this resolution of the Brahmins in Talcher, if given effect to, will have a far-reaching consequence in reforming many social vices and abuses that have gained currency in the Talcher society, for other caste people will not be slow in following the bright example of the Brahmins in that State.

GARJATBASINI,
Sept. 4th, 1909.

A proposal for a motor-car service between Sambalpur and Cuttack.

99. The Garjatbasini [Talcher] of the 4th September is of opinion that, as there is no chance of Sambalpur being connected with Cuttack by a Railway line, it is advisable that those two important towns in Orissa should be connected with each other by a motor-car service. An estimate of such service is given whereby it is pointed out that it will prove remunerative in the end. At present Government may show the way, leaving some Company in the future to take up the service. This is very desirable not only in the interest of administration, but also in that of the trade.

GARJATBASINI,
Sept. 4th, 1909.

A proposal to reduce a rate of fine in connection with the Jajpur
High English School.

100. The Head-master of the Jajpur High English School in the Cuttack district having fined its students for absence or late attendance at the rate of two annas per day, and this punishment having proved burdensome to the guardians of students concerned, the Garjatbasini [Talcher] of the 4th September suggests that the rate of fine should be reduced so as to make it acceptable to the guardians concerned.

SAMBALPUR
HITVISINI,
Sept. 4th, 1909.

Division of the Indian Army on a racial basis approved.

101. The Sambalpur Hitvisini [Bamra] of the 4th September is of opinion that the division of the Indian Army into the Brahmin regiment and the Kshatriya regiment has brought about harmony in feelings and motions, which were not visible before. These divisions are as good as the division of that army into the Pathan regiment, the Sikh regiment, and the Gurkha regiment. Each of these regiments has its peculiar characteristics, which should not be overlooked in any way. Great credit is therefore due to Lord Kitchener for basing his divisions of the Indian Army on a natural racial basis, which will prove effective and satisfactory in the end.

102. The Utkalbarta [Calcutta] of the 4th September is sorry to point out that a large number of counterfeit coins are in circulation in the bazars. This leads to a great deal of trouble in ordinary business. Innocent persons, who receive these coins without suspicion in the ordinary course of business, are put to great difficulty when their counterfeit nature is brought to notice.

UTKALBARTA.
Sept. 4th, 1909.

103. The Utkalbarta [Calcutta] of the 4th September gives an account of the way in which Uriya passengers are turned out of the benches of a railway carriage by the haughty demand of Bengali passengers, who want to monopolise the same. The Bengalis, who believe themselves to be more civilised than the Uriyas, look down with contempt on the latter with whom they cannot sit on the same bench. The more outspoken and the more presumptuous of the Bengali Babus find it difficult to restrain their hatred which makes itself known in various ways. In many instances, the Uriyas are compelled to sit on the wooden floor, making over their seats on the benches to their more fortunate and valorous brethren, the Bengali passengers. The writer therefore suggests that, as the Railway Company derives a good income from the Uriya passengers, steps should be taken to reserve a certain number of carriages for the Uriyas, wherein Bengali passengers may not be permitted to travel. The matter is an important one to attract the attention of the Railway authorities.

UTKALBARTA.
Sept. 4th, 1909.

104. After quoting the remarks which Mr. Shaw, the Principal of the Ravenshaw College, and Mr. MacLean, the Inspector of Schools, Orissa Division, have made in the visitors' book of the Ravenshaw Girls' School, Cuttack, the Utkaldipika [Cuttack] of the 4th September goes on to observe that the institution under Miss Das has prospered well and is now in a satisfactory condition. The institution now stands in need of additional accommodation, which is no doubt a costly business in so far as its financial state is concerned. No doubt attempts will be made to raise subscriptions from the public, but it is hoped that Government will be liberal in dealing with this institution.

UTKALDIPIKA.
Sept. 4th, 1909.

105. Referring to the election of a Chairman and a Vice-Chairman for the Sudder Local Board, Cuttack, the Utkaldipika [Cuttack] of the 4th September goes on to observe that the members of the Local Board were guided more by party than by public considerations in giving their votes for the two candidates—Babu Mayadhar Das, an Uriya Pleader, and Babu Nemai Charan Mitra, a Bengali Pleader. The result was that the Bengali candidate got a larger number of votes and was elected as Chairman. The same party feeling was noticeable in the case of the election of the Vice-Chairman. Of the candidates, Babu Bana Behari Palit and Babu Dharma-nanda Patnaik, the latter succeeded in securing a larger number of votes and was elected Vice-Chairman. The writer hopes that the members will give up party considerations and be guided by public considerations only. People will never learn local self-government, if Uriyas pull the string in one way and the Bengalis in the other.

UTKALDIPIKA.
Sept. 4th, 1909.

106. Referring to the detention of Uriya pilgrims at a station near Godavari, on the ground that they were plague-infected, the Utkaldipika [Cuttack] of the 4th September observes that this unjust detention was very hard in the case of those pilgrims who proceeded to Godavari from Puri. There is no plague in Orissa. Puri is also free from it. The Uriya pilgrims should not have been treated in this way near Godavari.

UTKALDIPIKA.
Sept. 4th, 1909.

107. The Nilachal Samachar [Puri] of the 3rd September states that 24 women and one man were crossing the Baradia river in a village canoe which was overturned in the middle of the river, thereby throwing the passengers into the water. The man saved his life by swimming. The whereabouts of the women are unknown. They seem to have been all drowned.

NILACHAL
SAMACHAR.
Sept. 3rd, 1909.

Nilachal
Samachar,
Sept. 3rd, 1909.

108. The Nilachal Samachar [Puri] of the 3rd September states that a meeting was held in the Puri Zilla School under the presidency of the District Magistrate, with a view to collect funds for the foundation of a public library in the Puri town. The gentlemen present exhibited great interest in the proceedings that were marked with pathos and zeal. It was settled that the library when founded would go by the name of "Clarke Library."

Garjatbasini,
Sept. 4th, 1909.

109. The Garjatbasini [Talcher] of the 4th September thanks the Chief of that State for improving the sanitation of the Talcher town by removing all manner of filth from the banks of the Brahmani on which the town is situated. A road has been constructed along the bank of the river lined by a row of trees. A walk on the road both in the morning and evening is not only pleasant, but salutary.

Garjatbasini,
Sept. 4th, 1909.

110. The Garjatbasini [Talcher] of the 4th September states that the food-stuffs are cheaper in Talcher, and that the prospects of the crops are good, and the State is free from diseases.

Utkalbarta,
Sept. 4th, 1909.

111. The Utkalbarta [Calcutta] of the 4th September states that small-pox prevails in the Kendrapara subdivision of the Cuttack district.

Utkaldipika,
Sept. 4th, 1909.

112. In giving an account of the proceedings of the second anniversary of the Central Utkal Young Men's Association, which was celebrated in the Cuttack town Library Hall under the presidency of Mr. Shaw, the Principal of the Ravenshaw College, the Utkaldipika [Cuttack] of the 4th September observes that Mr. Shaw has been using his influence and persuasive control over the students of the College with great success. The writer agrees with Mr. Shaw in the latter's statement that the aim and object of the Association should be rather educative than active. It should supplement the education which the students receive at College, and should endeavour to fill up the many gaps that Collegiate courses of study must necessarily leave. The meeting thanked those members of the Association who had done useful services in connection with the famine that had ruled in Kendrapara and Jajpur in 1907. The meeting was attended by about 400 members, most of whom were students.

Utkaldipika,
Sept. 4th, 1909.

113. The Utkaldipika [Cuttack] of the 4th September states that the Jhulan festival passed off quietly and successfully in Cuttack, and that the number of visitors at the Gopalji temple was very large. The weather was favourable.

RAJENDRA CHANDRA SASTRI,
Bengali Translator.

BENGALI TRANSLATOR'S OFFICE,
The 18th September, 1909.

REPORT (PART II)

ON

NATIVE-OWNED ENGLISH NEWSPAPERS IN BENGAL

FOR THE

Week ending Saturday, 18th September 1909.

CONTENTS.

|                                                                                                  | Page. |                                                                                                            | Page. |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------|
| List of native-owned English newspapers received and dealt with by the Bengal Special Branch ... | 401   | (f)—Questions affecting the land—                                                                          |       |
|                                                                                                  |       | Nil.                                                                                                       |       |
| I.—FOREIGN POLITICS.                                                                      |       |                                                                                                            |       |
| Nil.                                                                                             |       | (g)—Railways and Communications, including Canals and Irrigation—                                          |       |
|                                                                                                  |       | Nil.                                                                                                       |       |
| II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.                                                                  |       |                                                                                                            |       |
| (a)—Police—                                                                                      |       | (h)—General—                                                                                               |       |
| The Government Resolution on the Annual Report of the Bengal Police ...                          | 403   | Co-operation of India and other countries ...                                                              | 407   |
| The Government Resolution on the working of the Police Department ...                            | ib.   | A public meeting in Bombay ...                                                                             | ib.   |
| The Government and the Police ...                                                                | ib.   | A philanthropist on death penalty ...                                                                      | ib.   |
| The Government of Bengal on the police and the relations between the police and the public ...   | 404   | Habitual criminals in India ...                                                                            | 408   |
| Co-operation ...                                                                                 | ib.   | The Reform Scheme and the Regulations ...                                                                  | ib.   |
| Police in Bengal ...                                                                             | ib.   |                                                                                                            |       |
| The case of Gulab Bano ...                                                                       | 405   | III.—LEGISLATION.                                                                                   |       |
| The Bengal Police ...                                                                            | ib.   | Nil.                                                                                                       |       |
| The Police painted by their Chief ...                                                            | ib.   |                                                                                                            |       |
|                                                                                                  |       | IV.—NATIVE STATES.                                                                                  |       |
| (b)—Working of the Courts—                                                                       |       | Nil.                                                                                                       |       |
| The District Magistrate of Purnea ...                                                            | 406   |                                                                                                            |       |
| Supersession of the Punjab Chief Court ...                                                       | ib.   |                                                                                                            |       |
|                                                                                                  |       | V.—PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS AND CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.                                              |       |
| (c)—Jails—                                                                                       |       | Scourges of India. Popular view ...                                                                        | 408   |
| Nil.                                                                                             |       |                                                                                                            |       |
|                                                                                                  |       | VI.—MISCELLANEOUS.                                                                                  |       |
| (d)—Education—                                                                                   |       | The Bengal Provincial Conference ...                                                                       | 408   |
| Nil.                                                                                             |       | Bengal Provincial Conference—the speeches of the President and the Chairman of the Reception Committee ... | 409   |
|                                                                                                  |       | The Bengal Provincial Conference ...                                                                       | ib.   |
| (e)—Local Self-Government and Municipal Administration—                                          |       | A man and a Maharajah ...                                                                                  | ib.   |
| Nil.                                                                                             |       |                                                                                                            |       |

LIST OF NATIVE-OWNED ENGLISH NEWSPAPERS RECEIVED AND DEALT WITH BY THE BENGAL SPECIAL BRANCH.

[As it stood on 1st January 1909.]

| No. | Name of Publication.   | Where published. | Edition.  | Name, caste and age of Editor.                                                                    | Circulation. |
|-----|------------------------|------------------|-----------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------|
| 1   | "Amrita Bazar Patrika" | Calcutta         | Daily     | K. P. Chatterji, age 45, Brahmin                                                                  | 4,000        |
| 2   | "Behar Herald"         | Patna            | Weekly    | Monmatha Nath Dey, age 40, Pleader of Bankipore.                                                  | 500          |
| 3   | "Behares"              | Bankipore        | Bi-weekly | Sham Sankar Sahai, Pleader, and P. P. Sharma of Muzaffarpur.                                      | 750          |
| 4   | "Bengalee"             | Calcutta         | Daily     | S. N. Banerji, Kali Prasana Sen, age 38, and Kali Nath Roy.                                       | 6,000        |
| 5   | "Bihar"                | Patna            | Weekly    | Kali Kumar Sinha, B.A., B.L., Pleader of Bankipore, age 35, Kayastha.                             | 750          |
| 6   | "Hindoo Patriot"       | Calcutta         | Daily     | Prish Chandra Sarbadhikari, age 40, and Koylash Ch. Kanjilal, Pleader, Sealdah Small Cause Court. | 800          |
| 7   | "Indian Empire"        | Ditto            | Weekly    | Kesab Chandra Banerjee, B.A., age 45, Brahmin, and Panchanon Mazumdar, age 35, Hindu Baidya.      | 1,500        |
| 8   | "Indian Mirror"        | Ditto            | Daily     | Rai Norendra Nath Sen Bahadur, age 60, Head of the Mahabodi Society.                              | 1,000        |
| 9   | "Indian Nation"        | Ditto            | Weekly    | N. N. Ghose, age 58, Bar-at-Law                                                                   | 500          |
| 10  | "Indian Tit-Bits"      | Ditto            | Do.       | Satis Ch. Mukerjee alias M. Suttie, age 27, Brahmin.                                              | 300          |
| 11  | "Kayestha Messenger"   | Gaya             | Do.       | Jugal Kishore, age 36, Kayastha                                                                   | 500          |
| 12  | "Moslem Chronicle"     | Calcutta         | Do.       | Abdul Hamid, B.A., age 37, Muhammadan.                                                            | 700          |
| 13  | "Mussalman"            | Ditto            | Do.       | A. Rasul and M. Rahman, Muhammadans                                                               | 500          |
| 14  | "Reis and Rayyet"      | Ditto            | Do.       | Jogesh Chandra Dutt, age 58, a Calcutta house-owner.                                              | 500          |
| 15  | "Star of Utkal"        | Cuttack          | Do.       | Kherode Ch. Roy Chowdhry, age 68, retired Head-master of a Government College.                    | 400          |
| 16  | "Telegraph"            | Calcutta         | Do.       | Satyendra Nath Bose, B.A., age 31                                                                 | 3,000        |

ADDITIONS TO THE LIST OF NATIVE-OWNED ENGLISH NEWSPAPERS.

|   |                  |          |        |                                                                                              |       |
|---|------------------|----------|--------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------|
| 1 | "Day's News"     | Calcutta | Daily  | Babu Premananda Bharati, age 50, Hindu.                                                      | 500   |
| 2 | "Karmayogin"     | Ditto    | Weekly | Editor's name not known for certain. Arabinda Ghose is one of the contributors to the paper. | 2,000 |
| 3 | "National Daily" | Ditto    | Daily  | Babu Premananda Bharati, age 50, Hindu                                                       | 500   |

II.—HOME ADMINISTRATION.

(a)—Police.

AMRITA BAZAR
PATRIKA,
9th Sept. 1909.

852. The Amrita Bazar Patrika states that the Resolution of the Bengal Government on the Annual Report on Police administration in the province during last year is a document especially noticeable as every prominent point put forward in it in favour of the force runs counter to public opinion and sentiment. It is disappointing that all that has been urged with reiterated emphasis by the public organs in the Press and by the public representatives in the council or on the platform, as to the reprehensible police ways and practices which stand in the way of the public co-operating with them, is utterly ignored in the Resolution. The people have been crying themselves hoarse in drawing attention to such reckless goings on of the police as have caused the present feverish disquiet uneasiness and alarm. In spite of this there is not a word in the Resolution indicating that the ceaseless wailings of the people have had the slightest effect. On the other hand, the people are solemnly reproached for not co-operating with the police, while the latter have been effusively thanked for their grand work and the manifold successes achieved by them, though the people held back from co-operating with them and regarded them with suspicion. The journal expresses surprise that after successive proofs of the proneness of the police to drive absolutely guiltless people to the gallows—not to speak of fastening comparatively less heinous offences on innocent individuals—the authorities should expect and exhort the people to co-operate with the police. How can the people, except men of the type of ordinary approvers, help the police in this sort of work? According to the Resolution the people know who are the criminals, but are in such terror of retaliation on the part of the latter that they would not help the police to hunt them up. This is an absolutely baseless hypothesis for explaining the inefficiency of the police. The public is as much in the dark as to the cause of criminal outbursts, and the perpetrators of crime, as the authorities, and it is unfair to blame them for their helplessness. The long and short of it all is that the police are not to be held answerable for all their excesses and irregularities, which the people are crying out against, while the latter are to be blamed for not co-operating with them.

The Government Resolution on the Annual Report of the Bengal Police.

853. The Amrita Bazar Patrika states that in the Resolution Government

AMRITA BAZAR
PATRIKA,
10th Sept. 1909.

The Government Resolution on the working of the Police Department.

has taken no notice of the serious specific imputations concerning police actions in the judicial records, nor has it considered it worth its while to give any weight to the earnest representations of the people regarding police excesses and irregularities, showing how the police were practically the authors of the prevailing unrest. What it has done is to condense the report submitted by the Inspector-General of Police and to publish it in the "Gazette" as a Resolution on the administration of the police. The Resolution is consequently nothing but the reproduction, on a small scale of the picture of the police painted by themselves. No wonder the people are put far in the back-ground while the police, stand out in full relief in the foreground.

854. Commenting on the Government Resolution on the administration

BENGALURU,
10th Sept. 1909.

The Government and the police.

of the police in Bengal, the Bengalee does not dispute the statement that "the greatest difficulty in the way of the police is the reluctance of the people to co-operate with them in the detection of crime." It is perfectly true that there has been a very considerable measure of estrangement between the authorities and the people owing to the policy of the last few years. The partition of Bengal is at the root of this estrangement, and the feeling has been accentuated by the deportation and other measures of a highly reactionary and repressive policy.

But it is in connection with the police that the feeling of estrangement is most manifest, the people feeling rightly or wrongly, that the police are in many ways the cause of their troubles. It is against human nature to accept

